Questions Reopened in
I'm Alone CaseTHREE POINTS RAISED
Question Right to Attack and Sink Vessel in Effort to Force Search

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Stimson said Wednesday that the American reply to the Canadian government's memorandum on the sinking of the run "I'm Alone" was being prepared and that as soon as it had been delivered to the Canadian minister both notes would be made public.

Mr. Stimson said the tone of the Canadian note was most temperate and conciliatory. Newspaper accounts giving an impression that the note was truculent, he said, were in error and that the reverse was the truth.

The delivery of the note to the Canadian government will be only a matter of a few days, the secretary said.

Washington—(AP)—Reopening questions of prohibition enforcement which American officials had previously been settled by the run smuggling treaty of 1924 between the United States and Great Britain, the Canadian government has filed its protest against the sinking of the run runner I'm Alone last month in the Gulf of Mexico.

The representations were presented to Secretary Stimson late Tuesday by Vincent Massey, the Canadian minister, who is acting in the case because the schooner was of Canadian registry and his government, along with all other divisions of the British empire, was bound by the terms of the treaty.

The text of the note was not made public, but it was understood to raise three points bearing on the 1924 agreement, although not questioning the right of the United States to enforce the law, in which one coast guard patrol boat which began the chase was joined by another, the latter sinking the schooner.

THREE CHIEF POINTS
One of the points raised is understood to be based on the contention of the schooner's master, Captain J. T. Randall, that the pursuit, did not begin, as the coast guard reported, within one hour's sailing distance from the coast established by the treaty as the limit within which search and seizure is permitted.

On another point, the Canadian government is understood to take the position that, while the right of "hot pursuit" of a suspected vessel is recognized by international law if begun within the three mile limit, the treaty does not sanction such pursuit if begun outside that limit.

The third is understood to raise the question whether the right to attack and sink a vessel in the effort to enforce the right of search and seizure is sanctioned by the treaty and whether such action, involving the possibility of loss of life and property, is justified in such cases.

WORKMAN CUTS HIS OWN THROAT TO SAVE LIFE

Copenhagen—(AP)—Anders Hanson, elderly mechanic, cut his own throat to save his life Wednesday. Hanson was found with a gaping wound in his throat and taken to a hospital. When he had been treated, he related that he had swallowed a piece of bread crust the wrong way and was choking to death.

He decided that he must apply his own remedy and drawing his pocket knife made an incision right under the spot where he felt the bulging crust, to give himself air. His drastic surgery saved his life but physicians said they would not recommend his method for general use in such cases.

Chief of Police H. C. Baker ordered discontinued the practice of carrying the clubs during the daytime.

"Racine is a peaceful city," he said. "Our police don't need clubs."

The patrolmen are not disgruntled over the order. Anthony Marks was especially pleased. He has been swinging a "billy" on the Racine police force for 22 years.

Two Labor
Bills Win
In Senate

Madison—(AP)—Two measures fostered by labor organizations of the state were pushed through the senate Wednesday by the narrow margin of one vote. With all senators present, the vote on each bill was 17 to 16 for approval.

One, which was introduced by Senator Thomas M. Duncan, Milwaukee Socialist, would make void "yellow dog" contracts, which forbid employees to belong to labor unions. On motion of Senator John C. Schuman, Watertown, it was amended to abrogate contracts which forbid dairy farmers or other farmers to belong to Cooperative Marketing associations. It was ordered engrossed and read a third time by the senate, and has yet to come up for final passage.

The other bill received final approval from the senate. It would require railway companies to carry a full crew of three men on their locomotives operated in Wisconsin, and was introduced by Senator H. J. Severson of Iola, a Progressive.

ADOPT BEER RESOLUTION
Senator Walter S. Goodland's resolution memorializing congress to provide for a national referendum during the 1930 congressional elections on the question of modifying the Volstead act to allow 2.75 per cent beer, was adopted by the senate. It asks the national legislature to refuse to seat any congressman elected in states which refuse to put the question on the ballot. The resolution now goes to the assembly.

An investigation of the state athletic commission by a joint legislative committee also was approved by the senate. It adopted the Markham resolution asking such investigation on the ground that commission has been accused of dealing arbitrarily with boxers and boxing promoters. The upper house killed a measure proposing to change the constitution so justices of the peace will not be constitutional officers.

Among the bills passed and sent to the assembly were:

One providing that charters of banks and building and loan associations shall be withdrawn when they cease to function; one including the husband as well as widow in the $15,000 exemption allowed under the inheritance tax law; a bill permitting villages requiring banks to maintain a secondary reserve of securities which can be easily liquidated, and which amount to 20 per cent of deposits.

MOUNTED POLICE WON'T NAME NAG
FOR MAYOR HOAN

Milwaukee—(AP)—There will be no horses named Daniel in the Milwaukee mounted police detachment.

When four animals for use by police arrived Saturday, one of them was presented with the name that made the lions' den famous.

It also occurred to someone Tuesday that the mayor of Milwaukee, who was vigorous in his opposition to mounted police, also is named Dan—or Daniel.

It also occurred to someone that there must be a better name than Dan. There was Jack, for example.

For, mused the police department, it hardly would be fair to have a horse wandering the streets with the mayor's name and it might be considered as a permanent reproach to the executive. The horse's new name is Jack.

There will be no horses named Daniel in the Milwaukee mounted police.

Washington—(AP)—The Diplomatic corps at a meeting at the British embassy Wednesday decided to accord to Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Curtis, the social status which would normally be accorded to the wife of a vice president.

The decision of the corps was reached after more than an hour's discussion and was contained in a letter to be sent to Secretary Stimson in reply to one which the secretary communicated to the corps Tuesday through Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador and dean of the corps.

In the communication to the secretary of state the corps stated that since it was desirous of giving every courtesy to the vice president, it would accord to his sister at all official and ceremonial diplomatic functions the rank which would be accorded to his wife. The letter said that this policy would be observed until the corps could obtain "some definite ruling from a constituted American authority" on the question.

At the meeting of the corps, Sir Esme Howard explained that if no ruling is found to be forthcoming from a constituted American authority, Mrs. Gann will continue to enjoy the status established by the corps.

WAUPACA MAN HELD ON ARSON CHARGE

Deputy Marshal Prefers
Charge Against A. A. Rice

Waupaca—A. A. Rice, one of the proprietors of the Sun-Ray Heater Co., Waupaca, was arrested here Tuesday morning by Sheriff Arthur Steenbock and Under Sheriff James Hanson, on a complaint charging arson signed by State Deputy Fire Marshal W. E. Finnegan. The arson charge is the aftermath of a fire which broke out Feb. 25 at the plant of the company in this city.

Rice, furnished with $3,000 after appearing Tuesday before Justice M. B. Scott. Time of the preliminary hearing is indefinite, as it is not known when Mr. Finnegan can appear to press his charges, but it is likely that this will be next week.

Little damage was done to the Sun-Ray plant. Fire Chief Carl Cook found that oil had been poured out in the interior of the building, and reported this to the state fire marshal. The investigation which resulted in the charges against Rice followed.

When firemen arrived in response to an alarm, they found that the building was filled with smoke. Rice declared that he had gone to the building about a half hour earlier, and that when he opened the door he was engulfed by a heavy cloud of smoke. At the time of the arrival of the firemen he was at a neighbor's home, across the street from the Sun-Ray building. A claim that he had been slugged was discounted when no marks of violence were found on his body.

CABINET CRISIS SEEN AS FUNDS ARE SLICED

Berlin—(AP)—A cabinet crisis threatened the German government Wednesday as a consequence of parliamentary veto Tuesday to appropriations for work on the new 9,000-ton cruiser and curtailment of aviation subsidies.

Chancellor Mueller, it was said in parliamentary circles, appeared vexed at failure of the program of Finance Minister Hilferding and resignation of cabinet was regarded as easily as possible if some way was not found to smooth out matters.

Curtailed aviation expenditures have evoked a storm of protest from those who believe it will be a death blow to Zeppelin, Luft Hansa and other aviation enterprises. The 19,000,000 marks assigned the Luft Hansa were cut in half and the sum of 4,500,000 marks for the construction of a new Zeppelin hangar was withdrawn.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, at Friedrichshafen, said that cancellation of the government appropriation would "seriously endanger the development of airship construction in Germany."

Anxiety Proves Unwarranted
When Famed Flier
Lands in Texas

Brownsville, Texas—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from the Brownsville airport for an unannounced destination shortly after 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Failure of Colonel Lindbergh to reach the border Tuesday night caused the Mexican government to institute a check of air fields and air men on the American side of the line also became concerned over his whereabouts.

The flier was well rested apparently, but was hungry and ate a hearty breakfast.

He would not announce to what point he was going from Brownsville but was expected to fly eastward to be at New York Saturday for the arrival of the body of Ambassador Herrick from France.

Colonel Lindbergh landed here at 9:30 Wednesday morning. The flier declared it was of interest to himself and no one else where he spent the night and explained he had no intention of flying beyond the border of Mexico Tuesday when he left Mexico City.

Friends of Lindbergh here said they believed he might have stopped at a ranch near Tampico.

"I regret very much that the press has seen fit by an unauthorized statement to cause unnecessary anxiety for my safety," Lindbergh said.

DEMAND PROBE OF Charge County Board Wealthy Patients Without Asking Pay

A charge that seven patients from other counties are being housed at Overview sanatorium without charge to the county made by Supervisor Anton Jansen of Little Chute at Wednesday morning's session of the county board. Mr. Jansen also charged that wealthy patients were being cared for without paying at the institution and that workmen earning 35 and 40 cents an hour had to pay taxes to keep them there.

I want to know why these wealthy patients are not paying for their care and why the county is not collecting from the home counties of the foreign patients," Mr. Jansen said. He demanded that an accurate report on all patients be placed before the board at this session.

Supervisor John Tracy said he felt the sanatorium committee should do more than make an inventory each year. He said he had heard the same things that Mr. Jansen charged and he thought some explanation should be made.

The authority to make such a report and the administration of the sanatorium is in the hands of the trustees and not the sanatorium committee Supervisor William Powell, Arnold Krueger and John Dietrick said. These three are members of the sanatorium committee.

Decision was ended when a resolution was adopted asking the sanatorium committee to invite one of the trustees before the board Friday to explain the matter.

Former Governor Faces
Counterfeiting Charges

Defuniak Springs, Fla.—(AP)—"It's all a frame up," former Governor Sidney J. Catts declared at his home Wednesday when informed that a federal grand jury had indicted him at Jacksonville on charges of aiding and abetting a counterfeiting ring.

Jacksonville, Fla.—(AP)—Sidney J. Catts, Sr., former governor of Florida and a Baptist minister, Wednesday faced arrest on charges of aiding and abetting an alleged million dollar counterfeiting ring.

Others named in the indictments were Julian Diaz, Tampa attorney, arrested recently in Miami; Mateo M. Armand, Diaz's former secretary, arrested in Miami; and Madeline Leah Burwell, Diaz's former secretary, arrested in Miami.

With the return of the indictment Judge Jones set bond at $25,000 for

Solons Find Problem In Raising Pay

Madison—(AP)—An extremely complicated solution has been evolved by members of the senate for the problem of increasing legislators' salaries without boosting themselves out of office.

The difficulty arises out of a constitutional provision that no member of the legislature shall during the term for which he is elected be appointed or elected to any office the emoluments of which shall have been increased during the term for which he was elected. Legislators fear if they increase their salaries, as approved by the electorate in the April 2 referendum, they will automatically oust themselves from office.

William H. Markham of Horicon, after a conversation with the attorney general, comes forward with the following complicated solution:

He proposes that a bill raising salaries shall be brought in immediately, but laid on the table without action. He further proposes that when this legislature finished its work—if it ever does—it shall not adjourn sine die, but merely adjourn until after the November, 1930, election.

Senator Markham then proposes that the governor call the members back in brief session to pass the increase. Markham, who is frequently referred to in senate debate as that body's "constitutional lawyer," said he and the attorney general were convinced that procedure would solve the problem, though it would not give to hold-over senators the increased salary.

Formal Announcement of Appointment Made Today at White House

Washington—(AP)—Formal announcement of the appointment of former Vice President Dawes as ambassador to Great Britain was made Wednesday at the White House.

The announcement was made after receipt of word from the state department that the British government had advised that the appointment of General Dawes would be entirely acceptable to King George.

General Dawes' nomination will be sent to the senate next week and after its confirmation the new ambassador will be given such leave of absence as is necessary for him to complete the work of reorganizing the finances of Santo Domingo, upon which he is now engaged. When that is completed about five weeks hence, he will return to Washington to confer with Secretary Stimson regarding British-American relations before proceeding to the London post.

Selection of General Dawes was made last week and later in the week a communication was sent to the British foreign office through the American embassy asking if he would be acceptable as the successor to Alanson B. Houghton, who is to leave London for the United States on April 27. It was explained that the delay in receiving a reply from the British capital was due to the fact that the communication had to be transmitted to the king who is recuperating from his recent illness.

MAN IS STABBED TO DEATH IN CHICAGO

Milwaukeean Is Fatally
Wounded in Lobby of Hotel After Quarrel

Chicago—(AP)—A fashionable after-dinner drinker saw Harry Townsend of Milwaukee, fatally stabbed in Tuesday night in the lobby of the Hotel Stevens, known as the largest hotel in the world.

Townsend's jugular vein was severed when Pat Rogers, a former employee of the Milwaukee foundry of which Townsend is superintendent, went at him with a knife. Townsend died early Wednesday.

Rogers, following the attack, showed his way through the crowd of men and women; many in evening attire, and to the street where he surrendered to a policeman. He said he had gone to the hotel to see Townsend about a job, and that Townsend had called him a "scab" and knocked him down.

"He was much larger than I," Rogers told police, "and I used the knife to defend myself."

Townsend, who was 42 years old, was at the hotel attending a convention of foundrymen. Rogers said that when Townsend called him a "scab," he produced a card showing he had been a union man since 1921, but that Townsend's anger continued high, resulting finally in blows. It was after he had been knocked down by Townsend, Rogers said, that he drew his knife.

Townsend's wife died three weeks ago, leaving him with three children.

COUNTY TAX MONEY

Supervisor Says County Treasurer Shouldn't Have Accepted Any

The city of Appleton was sharply criticized Wednesday morning by members of the county board in session at the courthouse for holding back about $21,000 which it claims is due from the county in settlement of the bank stock tax controversy.

The matter was placed before the county board by Supervisor Anton Jansen, Little Chute, who charged Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, should not have accepted any money from the city unless she got it all. He said Appleton had never made a claim for the $21,000 with the county clerk or the city board and he said the city had no right to withhold money due the county.

District Attorney Stanley A. Stahl explained that Miss Ziegenhagen had accepted the money and given a partial receipt to the city treasurer upon his advice and he quoted from the statutes to show that the procedure had been legal.

Supervisor Jansen, however, termed the affair "a blunder" and he said that it was time something was being done to put an end to affairs of this kind. He pointed out that it was possible for every town, city or village in the county to withhold any amount of its share of county taxes which he felt it had coming in a claim against the county. Then the

PAPER LOCATES WOMAN IN AIMEE'S KIDNAPING

San Francisco—(AP)—The examiner in a copy-righted story Wednesday announced that it had located Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sleight, one of the figures in the Aimee Simple McPherson kidnapping case.

Mrs. Wiseman-Sleight, who has been sought as an important witness in the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Charles S. Hardy of Los Angeles, was quoted as saying she would go to Sacramento at once and volunteer to take the stand for the prosecution.

Judge Hardy is accused of committing judicial misdeeds in acting in behalf of Mrs. McPherson while her kidnapping story was under fire. The affidavit as set forth in the Examiner says Mrs. Wiseman-Sleight agreed to produce a woman who would "admit" being the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, Angelus temple radio operator, at Carmel, Cal., nearly three years ago.

This was during Mrs. McPherson's mysterious absence from Angeles temple. Upon her return she declared that she had been kidnapped and had escaped.

COOLIDGE TO BE LIFE
INSURANCE CO. OFFICER

New York—(AP)—Darwin P. Kinsley, president of the New York Life Insurance company, announced Wednesday that Calvin Coolidge will become a director of the company, succeeding the late Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France. Mr. Coolidge was nominated at a meeting of the board Wednesday and will be elected at the May meeting.

In making his announcement, Mr. Kinsley made public a letter from the former president of the United States accepting "the nomination, believing that life insurance is the most effective instrumentality for the promotion of industry, saving and character ever devised."

Mr. Coolidge added that he believed a well managed mutual company to be a cooperative society for the advancement of the public welfare and said that if elected he would be glad to participate in the administration of the New York company.

Mr. Kinsley said, in a statement, that Mr. Coolidge was the second ex-president of the country to lend his name and influence to the promotion of life insurance as a form of social service—from 1905 until his death in 1928, he said, Grover Cleveland acted as a trustee of the majority stock of the Equitable Life Assurance company.

Washington—(AP)—After a call at the White House Wednesday Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, said President Hoover will send his message to the special session of congress next Tuesday and the McNary farm relief bill will be introduced on Wednesday.

"As soon as the farm bill is introduced the senate will adjourn until Thursday and then get down to work," the Indiana senator said, adding that the farm measure would be ready Monday but that since the presidential message was to discuss it, the measure could not be presented earlier.

After the farm bill is out of the way, Senator Watson said, the senate will take up the reapportionment measure and then the bill providing for the taking of the 1930 census.

A joint proposal submitted by three national farm organizations which previously have been at odds regarding the nature of a farm relief program was made public Wednesday by Chairman Haugen of

Cost $52,000 To Open County Highways Last Winter

BOARD TOLD CONDITION OF ROAD MONEY

Committee Recommends Appropriations for Work Next Summer

Snow removal cost Outagamie-county residents $51,990.45 during the past winter according to a report presented to the county board at its meeting Wednesday morning.

The report showed that in spite of the fact that the county board had originally appropriated $25,000 for snow removal, and at its February session added another $25,000, yet a deficit of $51,990.45 existed in the fund. This large deficit was the result largely of the last snowstorm.

None of the supervisors voiced any objection to the deficit and a resolution appropriating sufficient money from the general fund to cover the shortage evoked no discussion.

Supervisor Sylvester Esler, Kaukauna, however, told the board he hoped the members of the highway committee would manage to get around on the roads to see how the men are working. He said that he had personally noted several instances of county employees shirking while on duty.

CRITICISM AND PRAISE

The highway committee was criticized by Supervisor M. Ryan, Combined Locks, because the group had purchased a tractor without advertising for bids this summer. Action was commended by other members of the board. The supervisors who rose to the defense of the highway committee pointed out that the big tractor had opened roads that had been closed all winter.

Supervisors Krueger and Ryan, members of the highway committee, explained that only one company made the tractor which the committee desired to purchase and therefore there would have been no use to advertise for bids.

A complete report of all highway funds was made to the board by the highway committee and this report drew praise from the supervisors.

"The highway committee is to be recommended for this excellent report which was presented without request at this time so that the board knows just how the highway department stands," Supervisor T. H. Ryan declared. "It is a fine report and shows thoroughly all the points on which the board members could desire information."

MACHINERY DEFICIT

In addition to the snow removal fund deficit a deficit was shown in the machinery fund of $29,554.69. This is slightly more than the deficit last fall when the board appropriated $30,000 for the purchase of machinery. At that time a deficit of $25,000 existed in the fund.

Following are the other funds and balances:

Garage heating funds, $1,613.93; motorcycle patrol fund, $1,290.53; county patrol fund, and wall removal, $1,314; spring breakup, $18,963.87; general county patrol maintenance, $22,572.17, or a total of $46,380.04; state patrol fund, which is requisitioned for as needed, $58,569.70; road construction, $72,577.59; county and town aid construction, $11,361.27; bridge fund, $189.94; bridge emergency fund, $3,430.88.

The highway commission's report included the following recommendations:

Appropriation of $1,500 for re-flooring and painting of the Coffey bridge on County Trunk F across the Embarrass river.

Appropriation of $3,000 for repairing the east approach of the Wolf River bridge on County Trunk S in the village of Stephentown.

Appropriation of $2,000 for repairing the east abutment, re-flooring and painting a bridge across Black Creek or County Trunk G about a mile west of Seymour.

Appropriation of $1,000 to eave troughs, new floors and new doors at the county garage.

The committee also asked for permission to dispose of all worn out and useless machinery and equipment at the county barns.

With but little discussion, other than praise for the highway committee for its work, the county board unanimously adopted the report.

After the report was adopted, however, the board passed a resolution instructing Stanley A. Staidl, district attorney, to bring in a report Thursday showing how much material any committee may legally purchase without taking bids.

The resignation of Frank R. Appleton, chairman of the highway committee, was presented to the board and accepted. It takes effect at once.

REBATE CHECKS READY AT TREASURER'S OFFICE

Checks for persons who failed to enter protests for street oiling when they paid their taxes last winter are ready and can be collected at the office of Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer. It was announced Saturday at the city hall. The rebates, prepared by the rebate committee, were allowed last Wednesday by the common council.

Persons who protested the street oiling assessment at the time they paid their taxes received their rebates several weeks ago. Everybody was not aware at the time, however, that a rebate was possible on the assessments and so did not enter protests. The council decided that everybody was entitled to the rebates, and the list of those who did not protest was prepared by the rebate committee after the tax paying period closed.

The Hawaiian legislature has passed a proposal to secure long weeks by celebrating most holidays on Wednesdays.

Three Lawrence students have been elected to Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social science fraternity at a recent meeting of the faculty members of that group. They are James Luther, Kent, Washington; Gerda Bank, Milltown; and Jennie Goelzer, Milwaukee.

Election to Pi Gamma Mu is based on excellence in social science and an average college grade of 85. The first chapter of Pi Gamma Mu was founded in 1924 to encourage a special study of social questions by scientific methods. The Lawrence Alpha chapter was founded in 1925 and is the only one in Wisconsin.

FOX RIVER HOLDS SAME HIGH LEVEL

Water Is 28 Inches Above Crest of Menasha Dam, Engineer Reports

The level of the Fox river is about the same as it was Tuesday, 28 inches above the crest of the Menasha dam, according to A. F. Everett, government engineer. It is expected the river will stay at this level for the next few days until after headwaters from the north come down, according to Mr. Everett.

Water in the Wolf river also is at the same level as compared to Tuesday, according to Mr. Everett. No damage has been reported by riparians, although in some of the lower sections of land near New London and Shiocton water is standing at depths varying from two to three feet.

Fond du Lac—(P)—Mayor George W. Watson of this city, said Tuesday he disapproved of suggestions for reservoirs or other retaining devices for surplus water in the Fox river valley district.

"That will only mean letting the water down slower, so that instead of having the principal flood only in the spring, Fond du Lac will be drowned out all the year around," he asserted.

The mayor said "we want protection from the high water here as well as for 60 or 70 families whose lands are flooded in the lower districts of the Fox river valley."

The 13-inch level on Lake Winnebago, he said, benefits only the waterpower interests and is so high that this city is menaced by floods every time there is any unusual rise or there is a strong wind from the north. The mayor was discussing the visit of federal agricultural department engineers to this section.

Portage—(P)—The Wisconsin river was expected to reach flood stage here Wednesday. The gauge stood at 15.5 feet this morning and a slow rise indicated that the 17 foot level, or flood stage, would be reached late in the day. No damage has been reported so far, and the 24 feet levees here insure protection to the city.

CITY CRITICIZED FOR HOLDING BACK COUNTY TAX MONEY

Supervisor Says County Treasurer Shouldn't Have Accepted Any county would be forced to start suit to collect its taxes, he said, and it would be involved in endless litigation.

FOLLOWED ADVICE

Miss Ziegenhagen was called before the board to explain her actions and she said she had simply followed the advice of the city treasurer.

The squabble started over the fact that Appleton is holding back about $34,000 of its share of county taxes, claiming this amount is the county's share of the bank stock tax refunds made more than a year ago to Appleton banks. When the bank stock tax was declared illegal the city settled with banks on a basis of 50 per cent of taxes paid under protest under the bank stock tax law. As part of the taxes collected under this law had been paid to the county the city contends the county should pay its share of the settlement.

The city of Seymour has presented a claim for more than $4,000 in a similar case and it is possible that other villages and cities in the county will do the same.

COUNTY NOT LIABLE

Mr. Staidl told the board he did not believe the county was responsible for a part of the tax settlement. He pointed out that the case recently decided against Fond du Lac in the state supreme court was not similar to the Outagamie case because Fond du Lac had been represented when the settlements were made between the city and the banks whereas Outagamie had not been represented. Superintendent T. H. Ryan said he agreed with Mr. Staidl that the city could not collect.

Chairman Mike Mack is to appoint a committee to investigate the claims.

A petition from Dan Kelly, turnkey at the county jail, for an increase in salary was referred to the salary committee.

A motion by Supervisor August Laube, Grand Chute, which would provide for a county board meeting on Sept. 3, was laid over until Thursday.

On recommendation of the highway committee several petitions for aid from towns and several petitions to have roads placed on the county trunk highway system were deferred until the November session of the board.

The application of R. J. Noel, Appleton, for the position of stock keeper of the county garage, was laid over by the board on recommendation of the highway committee pending the appointment of a highway commissioner.

By a unanimous vote of the town supervisors the towns voted to pay $1,500 toward the construction of the Spoehr bridge in the town of Maple Creek.

COMMISSION SUSPENDS FOR FOULING IN BOUT

Milwaukee—(P)—The state athletic commission Tuesday, suspended Martin Weltz, amateur boxer for 30 days for fouling his opponent at the Oshkosh Eagles Boxing club show held April 4.

The following sanctions for bouts were issued:

Professional—Eau Claire Athletic club, Eau Claire, April 12; Bower City Athletic club, Janesville, April 23.

Amateur—Fond du Lac Knights of Columbus, Fond du Lac, April 11; Elkhorn Legion Athletic club, Elkhorn, April 12; Sheboygan Eagles Athletic club, Sheboygan, April 12; Racine Eagles Boxing club, Racine, May 7.

Creek. The town will pay other half of the cost.

A resolution empowering the building and grounds committee to take steps to erect a garage to be used by the sheriff was referred to the grounds and building committee for investigation. Supervisors Krueger, Esler, Reichel and Bell presented the resolution pointing out that the sheriff needed a garage nearer the county jail so that his machines would be available for emergency calls.

Mr. Schwerke also received severe body bruises. It is expected he will be moved to his home in this city in about a week.

The accident occurred about 7:30 Monday evening while Mr. Schwerke was driving south to Milwaukee. ## WOMAN QUITS IN PROTEST OF M'CORMICK CONTROL

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, senior woman member of the state house of representatives, has formally resigned her vice presidency of the Illinois Women's Republican club as a protest.

She explained of "the domination of Illinois Republican women by Congressman Ruth Hanna McCormick." The club was active in the support of Mrs. McCormick's campaign for nomination and election.

Mrs. O'Neill wrote in her letter of resignation that Mrs. McCormick's campaign expenditures "constituted a bar to representative government by eliminating candidates who have not a large means at their disposal."

Mrs. O'Neill previously had charged that Mrs. McCormick's influence had prevented her (Mrs. O'Neill's) appointment to an important house committee.

FUR COATS, GALOSHES AGAIN ARE IN ORDER

Appleton people had better toss the moth balls out of their fur coats, and get out the old ear muffs and galoshes again, because the weatherman promises some very undesirable weather for the next 24 hours.

Rain or snow with another drop in the mercury is on the menu for Wednesday night and Thursday, he says. Snow and rain is predicted throughout the middlewest for the next 24 hours.

Spring flowers such as tulips and peonies suffered Tuesday night when the mercury dropped three points below the freezing point to 29 degrees above zero. At noon the mercury stood at 43 degrees above zero. Winds are shifting in the north and northeast which is usually an indication that this vicinity is in for rough weather.

CITY CLERK ATTENDS HEARING IN SENATE

Appears on Behalf of Menasha Favoring Bill No. 6-S

Menasha—City Clerk John Jedwabny was at Madison Tuesday where he appeared before the senate committee on taxation and corporations in behalf of the city of Menasha which went on record as favoring Bill No. 6-S. The object of this bill is the payment of taxes of each year and it also provides that cities collecting taxes in like manner will be required to pay state and county taxes in the same proportion that the city collects its taxes which is not the case under the present law.

In other words, the city of Menasha has this year collected taxes under the semi-annual basis, the first payment of which is in January and February and the final payment to be made in June. Under the present law the city is required to pay its state and county taxes in full that settlement can be made with the county treasurer in March. If this bill No. 6-S becomes a law the city will only pay 50 per cent of its taxes in March and the other 50 per cent in July.

PUBLISHERS WILL CONTINUE TO PUSH "CRADLE OF DEEP"

Yarn Is Authentic Despite Charges by Critics, Company Says

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE POST-CRESCENT. (Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association.) New York—Simon and Schuster, publishers of "The Cradle of the Deep," which has stirred up a big literary brawl in these parts, announce that they will not give up the ship. The book, which has been denounced as a fake, is the supposed autobiography of a girl, still young, who spent 17 years at sea. Ever since it appeared, Miss Joan Lowell, the author has been out on the end of a skyscraper, with a No. 3 gale of savage charges howling through the rigging. Today, her publishers reply: "We now discover that there is a considerably larger element of romance, unadmitted fact interwoven with the underlying sequence of truthful narrative than we had at first realized, but after the most careful scrutiny we are still satisfied that the essential honesty of Joan's yarn remains unassailable.

"We shall, therefore, continue to feature 'The Cradle of the Deep' as one of the most exciting and most entertaining sea stories published in many a year."

COLCORD STARTED RUMPUSS—Lincoln Colcord, author of sea stories, was one of the first to question the veracity of Miss Lowell's tale of a life at sea. He based his challenge on what appeared to him to be a rather amateurish handling of sea lingo—mizzens and garfs and port gallants and all that, as he saw it, were all awry and skewed. He published these observations and started the most entertaining ruckus, which this blase metropolis has experienced since the days of the Flying Cloud.

Miss Lowell is built like the skipper of an old time julewer with square shoulders, big biceps and long arms. She wanted to heaven at her critics with a belaying pin, but her publishers fixed up a session aboardship, with Mr. Colcord and

CHICAGO'S FIGHT FOR WATER TO BE SETTLED APRIL 15

Final Decision in Diversion Case to Be Given on That Date

Chicago, (P)—The Great Lakes diversion controversy now farmed out by the United States supreme court to Charles Evans Hughes, special master in chancery, was born nearly 30 years ago.

It is based on Chicago's question of right to alter the face of the earth. The next phase in the dispute between Chicago and neighboring states of the Great Lakes district is set for April 15 in Washington, when arguments will be presented that the city has not complied with a war department order.

The case followed the building of the drainage canal in 1900. Long before the turn of the century, the growing city discovered that it could not continue to dump waste products into Lake Michigan and still drink lake water. So over a ridge between the lake and the Desplaines river valley, engineers hoisted the short and crooked Chicago river, connecting the lake and the Desplaines by the canal.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 cubic feet of water per second were needed to dilute the city's sewage and carry it away from the lake. This diversion was the gate of battle. Lake states contended the diversion lowered lake levels and menaced navigation. Also, said they, disposing of its sewage was Chicago's problem, not the lake's.

About 12 years ago, the complaint found expression in an injunction suit. Eight years later an injunction was issued restraining the sanitary district of Chicago from diverting more than 4,167 cubic feet a second. The district was permitted to draw water at the old rate, but the war department demanded that sewage disposal plans be given a clear track. The permit for this extra diversion ends with this year.

In his "comeback" campaign Mayor Thompson defied the government to challenge Chicago's right to draw the lake water, and promised he would not permit the installation of meters, a provision the war department demanded be carried out.

Now, there is before the supreme court a petition from Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York for another injunction to halt water removal. The court, acting upon a report by Mr. Hughes, already has signified that the diversion of water for sewage dilution and disposal is illegal, and that only a fraction of the present diversion could be allowed, and that only for navigation.

Hughes held a hearing here in March to determine if Chicago was going ahead with the sewage disposal plan demanded by the war department. The district now is in an embarrassing position. It is bankrupt, and its bonding power is seriously hampered by a hostile legislature.

The Washington hearing April 15, outlining the complaining states contention that Chicago is not carrying out the war department's order, will be the last. Mr. Hughes will submit his report to the supreme court in June, when the tribunal recesses, or in October when it re-convenes.

STUDENTS SCOUR DUMPS IN STUDY OF SCIENCE

Great men have died for science and health of others have spent their last memento to discover the why and wherefore of electricity, germs and atoms. But no less appreciated are the efforts of the students of the ninth grade electricity class at Roosevelt junior high school. The boys, risking reputation and clean hands, have become scavengers—or, in the vernacular of the New York slums, "dump-pickers", for the sake of science.

Old automobile horns, horseshoe magnets, generators and batteries have been salvaged from the "dump heaps" in the city and proudly brought to class, where they serve as a basis for the study of the motor. Because they have been obtained at so little cost, it is possible to tear apart the objects and study their parts and action in minute detail.

PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN BY LOCAL MAN IS WINNER

A picture of Kay, a police dog owned by Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Reed, formerly of Appleton, appears on the front cover of Midweek Pictorial for April 6. The animal which was owned by the Reeds when they resided at 523 S. State-st. is a genuine police dog and is remembered by people residing in that vicinity. The picture of the dog was taken by Harvey A. Schintz, local photographer. The picture had been entered in an amateur photographers contest conducted by the magazine and was considered so well done that it was used on the cover.

ADAMS IS MEMBER OF SEA SCOUT COMMITTEE

Word has been received here by M. G. Clark, valley scout executive that Charles Francis Adams, who has been appointed Secretary of the Navy by President Hoover, is a member of the Regional Sea Scout committee of Region one which includes the New England states. He has been an ardent supporter of the sea scout movement since its inception in this country.

NAWADA-ST EXTENSION IS SOUGHT BY COUNCIL

A petition urging the city to open E. Nawada-st from its western terminus north to E. Wisconsin-ave has been filed with Mayor A. C. Rule and will be presented to the common council at its next meeting. The petition is signed by property holders in that part of the city. The proposed extension would run north on the west end of Haugen's plat.

PRANKSTER SENDS ELITE OF COLLEGE TOWN TO FACE COPS

Evanston, Ill., (P)—It was a pretty good joke, at that; just what might be expected of a prankish sophomore. The sophomore, if such he were, found an arrest book which Officer Horace Hart of the Evanston police force had lost. The fun-loving collegian immediately got busy filling out arrest slips for Northwestern university professors, doctors, business men, prominent citizens—almost anyone who drove a car. He saw that the arrest slips got to his victims. Then, no doubt, he retired to his quarters and laughed. Came a new day, and a flock of professors, doctors, business men, prominent citizens appeared at the police station in various stages of anger. It was an outrage; a blankety this and a blankety that.

It was no joke to them, even when it was explained; but it must have been, very, very funny to the sophomore.

NEED SPECIAL PERMIT TO BUILD CHICKEN COOP

No building permits authorizing construction of chicken or rabbit coops or buildings housing livestock will be issued by John N. Welland, building inspector, unless a permit allowing the applicant to keep such livestock has been granted by the health department, the building inspector has announced.

His ruling followed the recent announcement of Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, that, according to a city ordinance, permits are required to keep livestock within the city limits. Although the ordinance has not been enforced to date, complaints of stray poultry have been numerous this spring that it was deemed necessary to enforce the measure from now on.

SNOW REMOVAL COST $17,000 LAST WINTER

The heavy snow storm last week-end added little to the city's snow removal cost for the winter, according to R. F. Hackworthy, street commissioner. Although the streets were well covered with snow it was necessary to employ additional men only for a day or two, and their efforts were confined chiefly to cleaning street crossings. The snow plows had the streets opened within two days, and by that time warm weather returned and performed the job of taking away the snow.

Snow removal cost the city approximately $17,000 last winter, it is estimated by Mr. Hackworthy. The task of removing snow was one of the most difficult experienced by the street department in many years.

SHEBOYGAN, MANITOWOC ACT TO GET AIR MAIL

Manitowoc, (P)—A representative of the cities of Sheboygan and Manitowoc will go to Washington to press those cities' claims for a place on the Fox River valley air mail route, officials here stated Tuesday.

DOUBTED HE'D BE SO HEALTHY

Entire System Built Up by Sargon — Feels Finer Than in Years

"My system has been built up by Sargon and I feel better and can eat, sleep and work better than in years. This wonderful medicine did this for me at the same time it was ridding me of troubles which made me suffer for two years."

Charles Maurer, 2632 First Avenue, South, Minneapolis, made the above statement recently. Mr. Maurer has been connected with the Kennedy Warehouse Company for years, and is well and favorably known.

"For two years I suffered so with indigestion and stomach trouble I didn't know what it was to eat a square meal. I was dreadfully constipated and was continually taking purgatives. My blood was in such bad condition that my scalp was broken out with pimples."

"I spent a lot of time and money without success, trying to regain my health, until I heard about Sargon and tried it. It's the first medicine that ever reached my case. But it did more than give me relief. It proved the best tonic I have ever used."

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills are the best treatment for constipation I have ever found. They regulated me and cleared out my system so Sargon could get in its good work. Sargon tonic has put my stomach in fine condition. The pimples on my scalp have entirely disappeared. I am in better health than I ever expected to be."

Sargon may be obtained in Appleton from Volkt's Drug Store and in Kaukauna from H. G. Brauer.

HOLD BUS HEARING AT COURT BUILDING

Hantschel, county clerk, from the state railroad commission. The hearing will be held at the courthouse.

NEBRASKA PASSES LAW FAVORABLE TO A. A. L.

Passage of a bill which will permit expansion of their juvenile insurance program in Nebraska has been reported to the Aid Association for Lutherans here, according to officers. The bill now is in the hands of the governor. The bill permits issuance of juvenile insurance policies in an amount not to exceed $1,000. The limit formerly was $500.

ENFORCING THE CONSTITUTION

Rep. George H. Tinkham of Massa- chusetts has written a letter to the president asking him to enforce the en- tire constitution. Mr. Hoover is on record as upholding the sanctity of the constitution and the supreme obliga- tion assumed by the president to pro- tect and defend it, as if there were any- thing remarkable about that. He can do what his executive powers permit him to do in this direction, but he cannot do all that complete enforcement requires. Congress must extend its cooperation before the entire constitution can be given vitality and made effective, and congress has not as yet shown that dispo- sition.

This newspaper believes that the en- tire constitution should be enforced without fear or favor. It believes that the fourteenth and fifteenth amend- ments should be enforced along with the eighteenth. The issue regarding the eighteenth amendment should and will be kept before the country until the amendment is either enforced, repealed or modified. If it appears to be a hope- less undertaking to enforce it it ought to be repealed or modified. The four- teenth and fifteenth amendments will never be repealed. Moreover, it is pos- sible to enforce them, both without do- ing permanent injury to the South and without exposing it to the dangers of negro domination. It is within the right and power of congress to provide the means of compelling practical obedi- ence to these provisions of the constitu- tion.

It is inevitable there will be a break- down in the American system of gov- ernment unless the federal constitution is restored to respect and obedience. The very existence of the nation de- pends upon this principle. The consti- tution is what holds the states together and preserves the Union. It is easily conceivable that in the distant future it can be undermined to the extent that it would be overthrown, with dissolu- tion of the Union. The constitution, therefore should give to the states the widest possible latitude in self-govern- ment and in the management of their own affairs. It should also be suffi- ciently broad to preserve a maximum of personal freedom consistent with na- tional security and wellbeing. Too great an encroachment either upon the rights of the states or the individual must be harmful and dangerous in the end.

The ultimate test of any form of gov- ernment is respect for it and obedience to its laws. Laws as a rule which di- vide the nation and array one class against another, producing dissatisfac- tion, controversy and feeling, are bet- ter left unenacted. Laws which cannot be enforced should be repealed or modified. The sanctity of the constitution and the efficacy of laws are in- finitely more important than any pur- pose sought to be attained by directory or prohibitory laws. We have reached a state of lawlessness and contempt for government and authority where the validity of the eighteenth amend- ment and the whole prohibition move- ment is open to grave challenge. Some- what similar questions may be raised regarding the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

SINCLAIR IN JAIL

Harry F. Sinclair is going to jail for three months. The supreme court of the United States has affirmed the legality of his sentence for con- tempt of the United States senate in refusing to answer pertinent questions regarding the Teapot Dome scandal. It is the most pleasing social announce- ment of the season. Mr. Sinclair's millions kept him out of the peni- tentiary on a larger offense against the government and people of the United States; but they could not give him im- munity against the authority of the United States senate, and the supreme court.

Mr. Sinclair will spend the summer exactly where he ought to spend it. There are others of that galaxy of con- spirators that should be with him. Their escape and his escape on the charge of bribing Fall was due to a general breakdown of law following the war. He should give thanks that the term is for months instead of years. Wealth is not wholly immune from the constitution and laws of the United States; it is not entirely superior to the govern- ment. There were grave indications that it was nearly so, but the putting of Sinclair in jail for even three months dispels the apprehension to some ex- tent.

PROTECTING OUR CREDIT

A congressman from the state of Illi- nois, Frank R. Reid, makes the lime- light by charging that the Federal Re- serve board's policy to curb stock spec- ulation is illegal usurpation of power. A congressman is a formidable per- sonage and in his own opinion an au- thority on almost any subject, but in this case Mr. Reid is overstepping facts. "Congress," says Reid, "never conferred upon the Federal Reserve board the right to control the use which American citizens make of their money and credit, and the board is as- suming these functions without au- thority of law."

Contrary to the congressman's dic- tum, this is exactly what congress did do and what it intended to do. The Federal Reserve system was set up to take the control of money and credit out of the hands of Wall street and to make money and credit serve the legiti- mate uses of business, commerce and industry. It was one of the greatest pieces of legislation ever put on the statute books and has proved its worth every day since it was enacted. It is true that the act confers no arbitrary power upon the Federal Reserve board, but the entire system is so designed as to make money and credit elastic and to prevent their misuse by banks. No more colossal mistake could be made than for congress to interfere with the functioning of this system and in ex- actly the manner it is now functioning.

Mr. Reid says the policy of forcing decreased loans to speculators has ar- tificially depressed prices in the stock market to the injury of thousands. In this statement he betrays the fallacy of his conclusion, by adding that the prices have been "artificially" de- pressed. The fact that there have been serious breaks in the market because of restricted loans proves that stocks were not bought for in- vestment but solely for gambling. If they had been bought for in- vestment and paid for they would be put away and the market forgotten, the same as with bonds or other securities. They would not have to be dumped on a falling market. All of the vast sums of money being poured into Wall street are speculative, solely to gamble with the market. The artificial factor consists of manipulations and bull movements, not interference by the Reserve board.

The Federal Reserve board is, of course, right in the position it has taken. Stock speculation has absorbed al- ready far too much of the country's credit. Banks in all sections of the country are hard pressed for money, loans are difficult to secure, credit is being impaired for the ordinary re- quirements of trade and industry. Con- trary to the assumptions of brokers and stock gamblers, the prosperity of the United States does not revolve about Wall Street. Speculators in the present situation are doing the country no good; rather they are doing it harm.

Ample time was given of impending restrictions by the Federal board some weeks ago when it requested member banks to begin to reduce their specula- tive loans. Gamblers have nothing to complain of what they charge to be ar- bitrary action now. The one essential need is to keep the red blood of credit flowing freely through the arteries and veins of business. There are always de- fenders of inordinate speculation in and out of congress. They are attempt- ing to make themselves felt now in a movement for legislative interference with the functioning of the Federal Reserve board. Possibly some large banks are supporting them. In any event, con- gress should keep its hands out of the controversy, and if it attempts to meddle we have no doubt President Hoover will disapprove its actions. The Federal Reserve system should be pre- served and sustained.

The Remedy is Worse Than the Malady

The marriage had just been performed. The high-powered young business man groom turned to the preacher. "Well, what do you say?"

"After whatever you think it's worth."

"Good enough and a fair proposition. I'll give you 15 per cent of her earnings for the next year, less her cost to me."

Little Johnny who had been praying for some months for God to send him a baby brother, finally became discouraged.

"I don't believe God has any more little boys to send," he said to his mother, "and I am going to stop asking for one."

Early one morning, not long after this, he was taken into his mother's room to three boys, triplets, that had arrived during the night. Johnny regarded them thoughtfully for a few minutes. "Golly!" he remarked finally, "It's a good thing I stopped praying when I did."

Mistress: "Mary, has the druggist sent that sleeping powder, yet?"

Maid: "No, ma'am."

"Then ring him up and ask him if he expects me to keep awake all night waiting for it."

Two small boys returning to their schoolroom after recess showed evidence of having been crying.

Teacher: "Percy, why are you crying?"

Percy: "Harold kicked me in the stomach."

Teacher: "Harold, did you mean to kick Percy in the stomach?"

Harold: "Now, I didn't, but he turned around just as I kicked."

"Doesn't it strike you as strange that he should have managed to kiss you as you were unwilling?" added the counsel.

Look at my client, and then consider your own height. Why, you are nearly a foot taller than he is." "Well, what of it?" retorted the girl. "I can stoop, can't I?"

THE TITANIC SAILS

Seventeen years ago today a giant ocean liner, bound for New York, pulled slowly away from her Southampton pier. The Titanic, largest vessel constructed up to that time, was starting on her maiden voyage. Myriad bright handkerchiefs waved from the decks to the crowds that had come to bid the ship Godspeed on its first sail- ing. A blast of martial music rolled back from the upper deck of the ship. Flags rippled gaily in the breeze.

Four days later the vessel sank off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. "An iceberg's knife-like edge," says the official report, "cut through her bottom like a can-opener."

Passengers and crew aboard the ill-fated ship numbered 2,340. Of these, 1,635 were lost, includ- ing scores of notables. The tragedy was the greatest in the history of modern ocean traffic. The Lusitania disaster claimed but 1,200.

The iceberg was rammed at 11:40 p. m., Sun- day, April 14, 1912. The vessel went down Mon- day morning at 2:27, before aid could reach her. The 705 survivors were rescued by the Carpathia after they had taken to lifeboats.

THE LOW DOWN ON THE INFRA- RED

Probably, there is nothing lower than a red in the estimation of the fellow who has got his, but in ther- apies nevertheless we have one in- fra-red rays, and from the endless stream of inquiries I receive from readers it would seem that these im- pressive, indeed imposing rays are raising ructions in the imagination of the half informed layman.

Many a morning have I lain late in the hope of hatching some plan to make this ray mystery clear to him who reads. I haven't hit on a feasible plan as yet, but no matter, it will come in due time. You can't drive the subconscious; you can only give it free rein. Lying abed in the morning, when old fashioned folk are up, whether they're doing anything worth doing or not, is, in my habit of thinking, the best way to commune with the subconscious. There is a twilight zone there somewhere just between sleep and full consciousness where ideas are conceived. Of course most of them remain forever in the unknown. The trick is to capture the germ of the idea and fetch it out into the consciousness when you do wake up.

Listen to an authority of the highest standing, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, the sage of Battle Creek, who says in the American Journal of Sur- gery:

".....I think it worth while to call attention to the fact that special apparatus for the application of infra-red rays is not needed for the reason that these rays are always present in abundant quantity, avail- able in any quantity desired thru such commonly employed means of making heat applications as the fo- mentation, the hot poultice, hot wa- ter bag, hot sand bags, heated stones or bricks, and the shorter and more penetrating infra-red rays and lum- inous heat rays are always present in the radiation from arc and incan- descent lamps of every sort. Even the glowing coals of an open fire- place are a most effective source of the very highest therapeutic value."

As a point of interest I venture to add to the list of homely sources of infra-red rays the very efficient and increasingly popular radiant gas and electric heating devices. These modern heating units utilize the phys- ical principle of an incandescent sur- face, which gives off a large quan- tity of infra-red rays and what is technically known as radiant heat.

Radiant heat, from any open fire, flame, glowing coals or incandescent surface, warms surfaces or objects in the room, including the bodies of occupants, rather than the air of the room. This explains why an open fireplace is so comfortable, even tho a thermometer indicates a tempera- ture several degrees below that which is generally maintained in rooms heated by air registers or ra- diators.

Only those who have studied phys- ics—and physics should be one of the three or four main subjects of the first year of any high school course—can understand what infra- red means. Almost anyone may get an inkling of its meaning from ob- servation of the arrangement of the colors of the rainbow—their order is red, orange, yellow, green, blue, vio- let. Beyond the range of the violet is the ultra-violet, invisible. Below or under the red is the infra-red, also invisible. Beyond the violet the rays are cold. Blue is a cold color. Red is a warm color. Below the red the rays are heat rays. But this will scarcely mean anything to the un- fortunate who has been denied a fair education in school. I merely seek to tell you that infra-red ray treatment requires no special gadget.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

WHAT IS THE CRIP?

Nearly every winter I have from 10 to 15 attacks of cr. (Mrs. L. G.)

Answer—Evidently you think it is a definite ailment. It isn't. It may be rheumatism, influenza, con- sistencies, or any of a dozen other say you've had "cri" it's hard to tell the depth of the well from the length of the handle on the pump.

THE ROACHES ARE BAD

May I have a formula for bad roaches? (Mrs. E. V. G.)

Answer—It is bad for even the good roaches. I dare not publish it, but will gladly mail you the direc- tions if you will send with your re- quest a stamped envelope bearing your address.

PRIMROSE POISONING

Please state the nature of primrose poisoning. A few days after I brought a resting primrose from the base- ment up to our apartment my daugh- ter broke out with a rash with much itching. Her face, hands and neck had fine red pimples. It lasted only two days. Was this probably primrose poisoning? (Mrs. S. L. L.)

Answer—Probably not, tho the dis- tribution of the rash was character- istic of primrose dermatitis. But that usually continues until the vic- tim no longer comes in contact with primrose. If you remove the prim- rose, try bringing it into the apart- ment again and see whether the rash and itching recur.

BEER AND WINE

Is homemade beer and wine harm- ful, I mean the kind of beer made from malt and hops that are sold in so many stores for the purpose, and wine made from grapes? (E. M. J.)

Answer—I should say it is usually harmful.

DENTIST DIVINES DIAGNOSIS

My dentist tells me I have pyro- rheia caused by an acid system..... (D. B. D.)

Answer—In other words you have some infection or inflammation of the gums about teeth sockets (like a large minority of adults) and the dentist is indulging in a little quaint speculation about acidosis. It you gave the anticipated response to the acid system suggestion, perhaps the dentist will offer some half baked suggestion about your diet. Dentists are funny that way. Yours may be a very good dentist, at that—but don't let him tell you how acid you are.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER

Washington, William Howard Taft, chief justice, advises that all subjects who are interested in when he will retire will simply have to wait until July, 1931. At the present, he is un- troubled and happier in his daily work than he ever has been before, in or out of office.

Congress passed a bill in February which would permit him to retire from active service on full pay with- out waiting until he has completed 10 years' continuous service on the supreme court bench.

But the chief justice and ex-presi- dent has no intentions of taking ad- vantage of that unless he is forced to.

"It will be July, 1931, before I will have served 10 years. I expect to remain on duty at least until that time," he says.

Anyone who knows Mr. Taft will tell you unhesitatingly that he would rather be where he is today than in the white house. He would be un- happy unless he could remain in harness. He would not know what to do with himself were he not able to carry on the work of that unparal- leled career which began 48 years ago when he became an obscure county official in Ohio.

NO GOLF

Mr. Taft guards his health with the greatest care. Long ago he gave up golf. No longer does he write court decisions in long hand. There is an electric elevator in his home to obviate the necessity of climbing stairs. And not going out at night respiratory infections. So when you have become one of his inviolable rules.

His favorite form of exercise is walking, and almost every day the court is in session he may be re- cognized in the neighborhood of his home on Wyoming avenue strolling along much the same as any other pedestrian.

He is possessed of a sense of hu- mor untrifled in Washington. The infectious Taft chuckle has been commented on by everyone who has ever been in his presence.

There is a story going the rounds in Washington of how the other day while the chief justice was walking to his office he was passed by a mother and her daughter. The moth- er whispered to the child.

"That's Chief Justice Taft. Once he was president."

Not long afterward the two chanced to meet the chief justice again. The little girl dropped her glove by accident and Mr. Taft gal- lantly picked it up and handed it to her.

"Do you remember who that is?" the mother asked the child.

"Yes," she replied after looking him over; "you used to be Mr. Coolidge."

The following story is a part of The Associated Press files here:

"A painter working on one of the government hotels near the capitol yesterday dropped his brush. It land- ed on the terrace, and he asked a large pedestrian who passed oppor- tunely to hand it to him. The pass- er scrambled up the terrace and lift- ed the brush to the workman.

"Thanks," said the painter.

"Don't mention it," replied Chief Justice Taft.

Adventures In The Library

By Arnold Mulder

WEBB WALDRON EXPLORES THE "MEDITERRANEAN"

A few years ago Webb Waldron wrote a book, "We Explore the Great Lakes." As a Michigan man he was at home when he made his interest- ing journey by all sorts of means over these big inland seas and told the story of his adventures and those of his wife who went with him to furnish the illustrations.

The success of that venture ap- parently encouraged him to engage on a more ambitious project of ex- ploring the Mediterranean. It is the kind of thing he does best—making informal journeys in all sorts of craft, welcoming adventure in un- likely places, looking for the things that tourists do not see, and describ- ing for his readers the things that happen to persons who are sensitive to the delicate flavors of dramatic scenes and events and who keep hearts and minds open to the winds and the stars, as well as to the touch of humor, the occasional sting of sudden tragedy, the joys of simple people, the color of strange places.

Especially color. The Waldron book of Mediterranean adventures is full of color. The author and illus- trator seem specially sensitive to color. They revel in it and they lovingly describe it. The pigments of unfamiliar scenes and people, but also the mental and spiritual pic- tures that color alien civilizations along the shores of that land-locked sea that has been the highway of commerce for thousands of years.

This is so marked a characteris- tic of the author and illustrator that they have given their book the name, "Blue Glamor." They see the Medi- terranean in terms of blues. Not an unvarying blue but a thousand shades of blue, the delicate blues of a bird's eye and the impossible blues of a picture post-card. They list par- tially the blues of the Mediterranean and there is a touch of poetry about the catalog.

An interesting fact about the book, aside from its text, is that it is de- dicated by its Michigan author to an- other Michigan citizen, author, ex- plorer, iron-finder, traveler, and former governor—Chase S. Osborn.

The book is informal, as was the volume about the Great Lakes. Mr. Waldron did not go in a comfortable steamer that pouted at the usual ports frequented by tour- ists. They took passage in the dead of winter on a freighter. They wanted to see the Mediterranean from the point of view of the traders who have crossed its waters since history began. They wanted a view of the life of the trading ports. They wanted to get an idea of how auto- mobiles are shipped to Syria, how olive oil and dates and figs are ship- ped from the orient to America.

A trip in a freighter was not as comfortable as in a tourist steamer but from the Waldron point of view there would be little or nothing to see on a passenger steamer journey and everything to see from a freight- er.

There are days and weeks in port while the cargoes are being unload- ed and while other cargoes are being taken on. Those periods the two travelers used for going inland and seeing the interesting places and peoples all along the shore of the Mediterranean in Africa, Asia and Europe.

They have no startling adventures stand in a field of asphodel in Greece and they learn what Homer meant when he spoke of a "wine-colored sea." They watch water carriers with jugs on their heads trailing along an irrigation ditch in Africa and get a sense of the continuity of life from millennium to millennium.

They have no startling adventures but the savor each incident and get the taste of it across to their read- ers. The book has the flavor of a russet apple in March.

Appleton right on the matter, Sat- urday, April 6, was Army day. Everyone was asked to display the American flag on that day in honor of our present-day army. So that's that. Would suggest that any time in the future when Appleton gets stuck on anything like that to call someone out here in Seymour and we will be glad to set you right.

Yours very truly,

Adjutant, Robert Krause Post No. 106, American Legion, Seymour, Wis.

CAL'S EXPLANATION ON REFUSAL TO RUN STIRS POLITICIANS

Many "ifs and Ands" Still Current at Capital Despite Magazine Article

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1929 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Former President Coolidge's explanation of why he did not choose to run is just about the liveliest topic in political circles notwithstanding the fact that he gave more of a view of his mind than ever before.

The article published in the Cosmopolitan magazine has left political Washington gossiping and after several days it is obvious that Mr. Coolidge hasn't been able to clear up the political mystery to the satisfaction of the politically-minded.

Mr. Coolidge did dispel several illusions, notably, that he considered the third term idea as barring him.
While he doesn't think the burdens of the presidency should be imposed on any one for longer than eight years, nevertheless he doesn't think a vice president who serves a part of a president's term should have that period counted as a term in the sense of making impossible three periods of service.

The former president is convinced that he could have been nominated at Kansas City and while he sent his secretary, Everett Sanders, to tell delegations not to vote for him, he makes it clear that he never said that he would not accept if nominated. Indeed, Mr. Coolidge shows that he never came to a decision on that hypothetical case but merely tried to prevent the contingency from arising.

IF HE HAD BEEN DRAFTED?
The political element here accepts this explanation as confirming a view held by a great many Republicans as well as Democrats that Mr. Coolidge would not move a finger to get the nomination, would not use his office to perpetuate himself, would not encourage his own nomination but that if drafted he would have responded to the call of service just as would any man called to the highest task in the public service.

Mr. Coolidge points out that he felt physically fit but that he preferred private life from the standpoint of personal comfort. He intimates that even this should not be permitted to influence a man's decision if other circumstances can be brought to bear; namely, the nomination of some one else.

What will be a surprise to most politicians is that nowhere in the article does Mr. Coolidge show that he favored any candidate as a successor to himself. Mr. Coolidge's friends turned to Mr. Hoover, to be sure.
And Mr. Coolidge could have blocked the nomination of Mr. Hoover.
Hence politically speaking Mr. Hoover owes a great deal to Mr. Cool-idge's method of cooperation but politically speaking again Mr. Coolidge owes nothing to Mr. Hoover.

All this may or may not have a bearing four years from now. So far as politics goes today, Mr. Hoover has a clear field for re-nomination. Should friction develop inside the party, Mr. Coolidge will be brought forward by many of his friends as a natural choice for 1932.
Mr. Coolidge's explanations are of the kind that make him stronger

Select Asters For Three Months Of Garden Blooms

Asters require a rich, rather heavy soil and full sun for their best development. They also want plenty of lime in the soil. Wood ashes as a dressing after they have gotten into growth and bone meal in the soil when the plants are transplanted into permanent quarters are advisable.

There is one thing an aster needs that very often it doesn't get and that is plenty of room. One foot apart is the minimum and the larger types will give better results at eighteen inches. Given space and good cultivation they are one of the finest annuals in the garden.

There is a tendency to relegate asters to the cutting garden because of the lateness of their bloom and their short season in the garden, but this is a mistake as there is nothing finer in their season for garden decoration and nothing to substitute for their delicate colors which offer a pleasing harmony with the great company of yellow flowers that bloom in the fall with the reds which usually accompany the yellows.

While nothing is finer for cutting than the aster, it also ranks as high as any annual in garden decorative value, particularly, the tall, long-stemmed strains. By judicious selection of varieties it is easily possible to have a display of asters for three months, August, September and October. September is usually the month of maximum display. This selection with an early start for the seed will give as long a garden display as one could wish.

The Queen of the Market is an excellent early type. The Early Wonder strain is even earlier. Then come the Ostrich plume types, the early flowering strain of the American Beauty type, the Giant late branching type, and last of all, the late blooming American Beauty type. A fascinating midseason development is prove he will remain a potential factor in national politics for many years to come.

ever, is only from 4.7 to 4.8 per cent.

On the other hand the Toledo-Cincinnati Division 4s sell to give considerably over 5 per cent. As this is written they are down four points from the high of 1929 and ten points below the high of 1928.
Now there is no reasonable doubt about the quality of this bond and it will sell higher. The investor cautious enough to insist on bonds need not deny himself the largest yield obtainable in the Baltimore & Ohio group.

In the same way one may take the fixed interest bearing obligations of other railroads and of industrial companies. First making sure that net income available for interest and dividends is increasing one may then select that bond, whether mortgage secured or not, whether with the first claim on earnings or whether subject to prior liens—that sells on the highest yield basis.

MAN FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Police here have been asked to aid in the search for Anton Hendricks, 29, who is wanted at Green Bay for embezzlement and grand larceny. Hendricks disappeared on March 25 with a Chevrolet sedan.

He is about five feet, nine inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, is of light complexion with brown hair and wears glasses.

the new anem-one-flowered Sunshine aster, and there are also some fine strains of single-flowered asters that are beginning to run the huge double types a close race because of their size and beauty for cutting. The English gardens are going in more strongly for the single types than Americans but they are making their way in our gardens and are worthy subjects.

SOME SECOND GRADE ISSUES ARE SAFE, INVESTORS ADVISED

Not Necessary to Take Government Securities to Be Cautious

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
New York—If there are investors conservative enough to follow Secretary Mellon's advice and purchase bonds instead of stocks it will not be necessary for them to take government securities or the highest grade of railroad mortgages to insure safety. They can without risk accumulate the second grade issues, obligations of corporations with an improving earnings status.
In this way they will have the possibility of a modest price appreciation as well as a generous return.

Simply by way of illustration we may take the Baltimore and Ohio bond list. Baltimore & Ohio is steadily progressing financially. Its common stock has investment merit and probably sooner or later will receive a higher dividend. The road has nine bonds listed and actively dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange. The first 4s sell on the lowest yield basis and together with the 5s secured under the same mortgage probably rank ahead of the others as investments. The return available with either of them, how-

Modern Ponce De Leon's Fame Has Spread Abroad

BY SUE McNAMARA

Washington — (AP) — A modern Ponce de Leon who runs a beauty establishment in Washington has made of his place an international fountain of youth.

Having acquired a vogue among the elite of the capital's society, his fame has been spread to the four corners of the earth by wives of diplomats who have been to Buenos Aires, in Paris, in Tokio, in Berlin he is known through enthusiastic women who return to their homes in those countries after a sojourn in Washington.

Arrived in Washington, beautification usually is first on the program of the new diplomat's wife. She is eager to know how women of this country are wearing their hair or perhaps she has a new European style of her own to introduce.

FARM WOMEN SHOULD WORK IN CLUB GROUPS

Claude, Tex. — (AP) — The 6,000,000 farm women of the country if organized into clubs would do more to bring about economic justice and rural prosperity than all the legislatures can ever do, in the opinion of Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner, chairman of the newly formed committee on rural cooperation of the general federation of women's clubs.

Mrs. Warner hopes to have a farm women's club in every county in the country eventually. Many states already have begun organizing their country clubs. Arkansas has 46 of the state's 75 counties already organized.

Mrs. Warner urges city club women everywhere to include farm women in the program and plans.

MOTHER IN LAW IS COLLEAGUE OF LAWMAKER

Springfield, Mass. — (AP) — A member of the Massachusetts legislature now has a fellow legislator as his mother-in-law.

John Kendall Joy, Jr., is a representative in the state legislature. He was married recently to Miss Lydia Brigham. Mrs. Fred Brigham, mother of the bride, is likewise a member of the state house of representatives, chosen from a district adjoining that of Representative Joy.

It is believed that Joy and Mrs. Brigham are the only legislators in the country related to one another as son-in-law and mother-in-law.

Budapest — Patriotic Hungarians are trying to establish "Let us hope for a better future," in place of "Good morning," as a greeting. A person thus saluted would reply, "May God hear your voice."

though the owner of the beauty establishment was fighting against the Germans with the French during the world war, he said the wife of the German ambassador continued to go to his softly lighted parlors for her manacles and manieures.

The place has a number of linguists in its list of 37 employees, but many women folk of resident or visiting foreigners prefer the ministrations of an attendant of another sex.

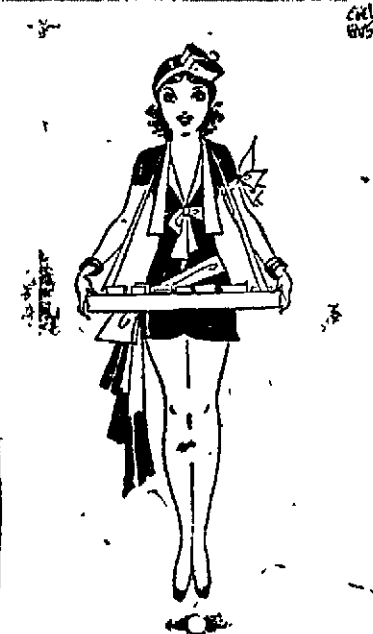

Racial prejudices simply do not exist inside the beauty parlor. Soothing finger tips and nimble wrists are more potent than words or weapons in producing harmony.

Many prominent Washington matrons have their regular weekly appointments. They keep them religiously, deeming their facial and manieure, shampoo and manieure an indispensable part of their strenuous social program.

Here, too, come the wives of congressmen from corn belt, east and west. Washington beauty salons are in the midst of their busiest season with Lent over and the long summer with its need of permanent waves ahead.

As for the bob, the owner of this exclusive establishment says positively that it is here to stay.

"Not the boyish bob," he hastens to say, with an expressive gesture. "The boyish bob is the reason so many husbands hold up their hands in horror when wives threaten to bob their hair. The bob that is here to stay is the long bob for youth and the modified bob for older women. The boyish bob has no place in any woman's beauty program."

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

WHEN Clowdy called his three playmates to come up to the Thunder Gates, they stopped to think a minute. Then wee Scouty said, "Why not? If he is game to go up there, I'll follow him most anywhere." He walked upon the lightning streak and found it wasn't hot.

So let's hop out and make the trip. Stay on the streak and do not slip. We'll leave out Goofoog right here. He will not fly away. You see, our cabin must be saved, 'cause when we built it we all slaved. Besides we may have use for it ere night blots out this day."

"Oh, let's not walk it," Copy cried. "I would be a lot more fun to ride. We'll stay right here and tell the Goofoog to please ziddap. I'd love to go where Clowdy goes, but let's be careful. Goodness knows you never can tell when you're going to fall into a trap."

The Goofoog then spoke aloud, "I'll gladly take this happy crowd right up to good old Clowdy. Then I'll skip and leave you all." Then up they went, upon a ride and landed right by Clowdy's side. The trip was made real quickly 'cause it was no task at all.

The bunch jumped out and Copy cried, "Come on, now, let's run right inside of funny looking Thunderland before the close of day." "No, no," cried Scouty. "Not just yet. First let's tie up our big bird pet. He says if he is left alone, he'll promptly fly away."

A small cloud then rose in the sky and very proudly said, "Now I am just the place to tie him to. I'll hold him good and tight." So round the cloud they threw the rope that held the Goofoog. "I hope," said Copy, "this will hold and all will be right."

Sinner

By Anne Austin

An hour later Tony Trave, followed by dusky Annabell, carrying the heavier of the two bags, appeared, breathlessly, in the liathaway living room. Cherry, Crystal and Lulu Hope, all dressed, coated and baited for the journey and surrounded by luggage, greeted her gaily. Faith, looking on, chuckled to herself at the dexterous way in which Cherry extricated herself from the tangle in which her insane conduct of the night before had involved her.

"Hi, Tony! Won't we have fun? I don't know why I hadn't thought of a house party before. And to think I'm getting two of Stanton's most popular celebrities! I'll bet the reporters will be here for the next week or two."

"It's peachy of you and Nils to ask us out," Tony replied, with apparently no guile. "The farm will do wonders for Crys. Just what she needs."

"That's just what we said," Cherry affirmed sweetly. "We talked it over last night. Nils and I—and I agree to stay in and help Crystal get ready for the trip. Doesn't she look marvelous already, just at the thought of a convalescence on the farm?"

"You need me any mo," Miss Tony? Annabell asked, who was obviously having great difficulty in controlling her mirth. "What Ah gonna say to all dem reporter boys? 'I saw my sis ain't gonna hang 'round all day, answerin' de bell and de phone fo' you."

"Tell 'em it's all a mistake, Annabell, that I never flew a plane in my life, that I didn't make and endurance record," Tony laughed. "Tell 'em it was two other girls."

"Aw, Miss Tony—," Annabell expostulated, rolling her coal-black eyes.

"Well, then, Annabell, if you insist on being disgustingly truthful, tell them that for every interview they get from Sandy Ross, I'll give 'em one; for every picture he consents to pose, I'll pose one. Tell them I said: 'Far be it from me to accept more honor and glory than my honored colleague in aviation—Mr. Sandy Ross.' Got that, Annabell?"

"I'll tell 'em you said, 'No,' but I'll make it kinda nice-like," Annabell grinned. "Won't do no good to hush nobody's feelin'."

"Attagirl!" Tony applauded. "Now scuttle home and be sure you take good care of Pat for me. Get out his heavy and bully him in to putting them on. Forward any mail to me—especially letters from Mother, but I'll break your neck if you tell anyone where I've gone."

When Annabell had "scuttled," Faith said: "The morning paper is full of plans for celebrating your achievement, Tony. Do you think it's wise to disappoint them all? 'City Fathers Plan Banquet for Stanton Heroine,' she quoted smilingly.

"Rubbish!" Tony dismissed the subject. "Think how much money they'll save if I don't let myself be feted! Wouldn't I look a fool setting myself up as a heroine, with Sandy Ross doing the Lindbergh modestly stunt? Not that Sandy's imitating Lindbergh!" she denied quickly. "But after we'd made our silly old records, out in Los Angeles, Sandy and I agreed to stick up for our rights to be private citizens. Got an offer to go to the movies, by the way. Me and Ruth Elder! I don't blame her, but ... Well, all set? If you're going to drive, Cherry, may I hold Hope?"

Have varied flavors on your table

ONE of the greatest joys in eating is in being able to taste first one flavor, then another—to contrast something sweet, for instance, after the delicate salt of some other food; or the clear tang of juicy fruit with a piece of cake.

It is sugar that helps these delightful contrasts most. It lends emphasis to other flavors by the sweetness of its own. Then it does something more. It accents the true flavor of the food it blends with. A sprinkling of powdered or confectioners sugar over strawberries softens their acid, and clarifies their flavor. Or a small portion of sugar on peas in cooking, makes them taste more richly like peas.

If you have varied healthful foods on your table, you have varied flavors... milk, fruits, vegetables, cereals, meats, simple desserts. For greater joy in eating, flavor with sugar. The best cooks are generous with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

YOUNG AND YOUNG

SPRING WITH ITS TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The laziness that comes with the blossoms is more than mere mental inertia. It should not be classed with the complex that is mere obsession against work, but given at least honorable mention amongst spring diseases. Children get it too.

Johnny is likely to catch it at both ends of the line, at home and at school. It takes him hours to do the smallest errand and as for lessons—the teacher never lived who didn't view the first newswillow with consternation. Spring is the shoal on which the good ship of learning usually gets stuck.

Sulphur and molasses, sassafras and sarsaparilla may have thinned the blood of our grandfathers, but it never kept them from dreaming of the swimming-hole and digging down under the winter accumulation of junk in the woodshed to see if the old fishing pole was ready for bait. And it never made them study any harder. About this time of year things usually begin to happen to the standard routine of household affairs also.

The first thing Johnny discovered, one fine day when he daudled in at a quarter to one with only five minutes for lunch, is that there's no mother and no lunch waiting for him. Mother is up in the attic starting the spring cleaning!

From that time on his man's soul is harried by ladders, bare floors, boiled dinners, carpets to beat, lawns to clean up, old leaves to burn and errands, errands and more errands to run. Mother cross and tired out, father mad, sister peevish, teacher unreasonable and the whole lovely world calling, calling, calling to him to go.

It is a hard time for children all round.

I wish there could be a vacation for everyone in April. By the time the hot months arrive we have our second wind, so to speak and some way we keep going far better then than during the transient days of spring. Why do we pile into these precious weeks the hardest work of the year?

Why not enjoy the outdoors and follow the line of least resistance as far as possible—and allow the children to do the same? And then everyone would be happy and patient and peaceful, as spring deserves. But one thing we grown-ups must do on days when the enervating south wind blows our way. Be patient with the children.

MOTHERS!

For your children's sake, do me this favor!

Says TERESA GLEASON

"As a teacher in the public schools, I come into contact daily with many children. The kind of nourishment a child is given is plainly evident in his handling of work, in his attitude toward his work, his teacher and his class-room.

"A child that is fed without regard to the effect on his health will bring an irritability to school that spoils his spirit and retards the general go-aheadness of the schoolroom, while a child that is given a good start at breakfast and at lunch-time brings to his lessons good nature, spontaneity and and wholesomeness that gives the teacher a period of delight.

"If I could be granted a favor, I would ask that mothers, instead of serving indigestion-making, nerve-pulling, health-breaking beverages, try easily-made Instant Postum made with milk just to find the good effect of a health-giving drink on dispositions and discipline.

"It is certainly an inexpensive way of serving all-round happiness, health and satisfaction—a way within the reach of every mother."

TERESA F. GLEASON

2 Stillman Place, North End, Boston, Mass.

THOUSANDS of mothers have already discovered the value of serving their children Instant Postum made with milk. And in so doing, they have found that they were not only doing a favor to the teachers of their children—they were doing a favor to the children—and to themselves.

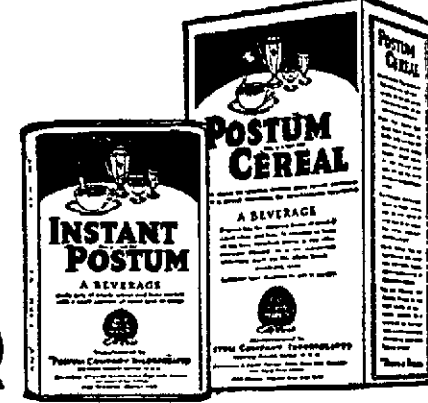

For this wonderful hot drink—a drink that combines the nourishment of milk with the wholesomeness of whole wheat and bran—builds children up physically. And children love the flavor! Even children who won't drink milk alone drain their cups of Postum made with milk.

This drink so easy to make! Just a teaspoonful of Instant Postum in the cup, fill with hot (not boiled) milk, sweeten to taste—the drink is ready!

Order a can of Instant Postum today from your grocer—serve it to your children at breakfast tomorrow. And try it yourself, made either with milk or boiling water, in place of caffeine beverages. It's just as good for you as it is for the children!

STATE CERTIFICATES

Madison—(AP)—Certificates of registration to 352 new registered nurses who qualified for that title by passing the last state-wide examinations held at Ashland and Milwaukee.

According to Miss Ada Eldredge, director of the Bureau of Nursing Education, 75 per cent of the candidates passed this examination, the percentage of failures being the lowest ever recorded.

Nurses are required by law to file their certificates of registration within 30 days with the county clerk of their residence. The board advised that newly licensed nurses who file with the county clerk at once will be included in the annual state directory which will be published this spring.

CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT

Quality is the Keynote of what People Say about Plymouth

PLYMOUTH
AMERICA'S LOWEST-PRICED
FULL-SIZE CAR

FULL SIZE

WHEN people discuss Plymouth, quality is invariably the keynote of their conversation.

They say most complimentary things about its Chrysler smartness, its charm, its slender-profile radiator, its graceful "air-wing" fenders, its arched windows, its chromium-plate bowl-type lamps.

They comment highly on Plymouth's full-size dimensions, its richness and spaciousness, its wide, deep seats, its exceptional leg-room.

PLYMOUTH has been so named because of its endurance and strength, ruggedness and freedom from limitations so accurately typified by Pilgrim band who were among the first American Colonists.

They refer glowingly to the powerful performance of Plymouth's 45 h. p. engine, of Chrysler "Silver-Dome" principle—its speed, its pick-up, its ability on hills, its smoothness, its quietness.

They speak of Plymouth's safety—of its full-size Chrysler weatherproof 4-wheel hydraulic brakes, its rugged full-size chassis, springs and axles. They praise Plymouth's amazing economy in fuel, oil and upkeep.

After all, it is only natural that people should talk more about Plymouth's fine qualities than they do about its low price—for Plymouth is, first and last, a motor car of intrinsic quality and value

TAMMANY GROWING TOGETHER AS DRY TURMOIL PERSISTS

Recent Developments Tend to Reunite Disaffected Elements

Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

New York — A curious and unexpected effect of the growing prohibition turmoil, against the background of recent killings, has been to reunite disaffected Tammany elements and to give hope for the ending of the deadlock and the selection of a leader to replace George W. Olvany, resigned.

Partisans of the old and the new Tammany organizations — and this is essentially the present alignment — have derived great satisfaction over the discipline of the dregs. The sinking of the Canadian schooner, the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King, in Aurora, Ill. stirred up a lot of old-fashioned Irish fighting talk around the wigwags and experience has shown that this is the best Tammany medicine for healing wounds.

At the same time the United States supreme court decision denying the seven-cent fare plea of the local traction companies comes along providentially to solidify the position of Mayor Walker in the city democracy. John F. Hyland, former mayor, fades out of the picture and everything looks peaceful and serene again.

With the drafting of Alfred E. Smith to start peace negotiations and lead the way to a final treaty, there was considerable assurance that Tammany would find a leader and work out a program which would save it from the expected rupture with the up-state crowd. The happy warrior while still happy, is only a sort of consultant warrior in this row, but it is whispered that he is a lot more interested than he lets on, and that he still keeps a deft and masterful touch on political affairs.

CRAFT RIDING HARD

While, on Dec. 14 of last year, Mr. Smith renounced leadership of the state democracy, deferring to Governor Roosevelt, the craft has been on her beam ends once or twice since then, and, in the last session of the state legislature, the democrats received the worst trimming in their history. Governor Roosevelt's program was conscientiously and thoroughly annihilated by the republicans and the New York city democracy, as a result, is finding itself politically isolated.

Former Gov. Smith broke with powerful Tammany leaders, soon after his first election — a serious break which for a time threatened his entire administration — but he was an adroit and sure-footed politician. He patched things up and laid the foundations for the "new Tammany" by infusing new and progressive up-state elements into the organization. It was this extraneous strength that came to his aid time and again, and enabled him to resist the onslaught of the more insular of the district leaders who had the old in-growing view of Tammany affairs.

FACTIONS ARE SPLIT

The more or less detached and disinterested view here is that the ascendancy of the old time Tammany politician would shift New York, possibly irrevocably, to the republican column. In the reforming lines, and with Gov. Roosevelt's rebuff of George W. Olvany, there has been a sharp split between city and state factions, first noticeable when Tammany failed to deliver for governor Smith in the presidential election. The state organization has irritated, if not angered Tammany district leaders by forming alliances with leaders of outlying boroughs. Tammany is uneasy, in fact alarmed, over the growth of suburban population, and has clashed with the state machine for this reason.

Adelphians Meet

The Adelphians club met at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening to arrange plans for a spring party to be given in two weeks.

OBSERVE CENTENARY OF WILLIAM BOOTH

The centennial year of the founder of the Salvation Army, William Booth, was observed generally throughout the world Sunday, April 7 and the week following that day. William Booth was born April 10, 1829 in Nottingham, England. He worked in the slums of Whitechapel and in 1875 the militant idea of a pacific aggressiveness was embodied in the adoption of the name, The Salvation Army. The keynote of his career was saving souls but he said "If I cannot get their bodies as well, they are neither good for God nor man."

EIGHTY PEOPLE ATTEND YACHT CLUB FESTIVAL

Eighty people attended the annual spring festival of the Appleton Yacht club at Rainbow Gardens, Monday evening. Dancing featured entertainment and several novelty numbers were presented by Tom Temples orchestra. Special entertainment and refreshments were prepared by the committee in charge.

The proceeds of the dance will be used for development of the club's new quarters on S. Pierce-ave. It is hoped that within the next year the local organization will be one of the most active of its kind in the valley. It is now composed of 40 active members.

Plans are now being arranged for the summer program. It is expected several excursions will be conducted, and plans also are being arranged for other summer activities at the club house. The club owns and operates a fleet of 12 boats, including a cruiser, motor boats and speed boats.

ORGANIZE NEW CLUB AT SPEAKER'S CLASS

A Toastmaster's club which will meet every two weeks for the next few months, has been organized by the group taking the public speaking course sponsored by the chamber of commerce and the Y. M. C. A. The purpose of the club will be to train members to make short formal talks such as often are necessary at formal dinners. The talks will all be of 10 minute duration.

Members also have decided to invite persons who last year were members of the class to join in the dinner and speeches. Subjects will be assigned the speakers for the various meetings. Methods of Making a Speech Forceful and Convincing was the assignment covered by the class Tuesday evening. F. M. Ingler is the instructor.

TORNADO RELIEF WORK IS RUSHED

Survey Nearly Completed and Rehabilitation Is Well Under Way

Madison — (AP) — The survey of tornado-swept areas of Wisconsin, ordered by Governor Walter J. Kohler, is being completed and care for the injured, temporary home provisions and clearance of wreckage is well under way, the executive said Wednesday.

Adjutant General Ralph Immo was asked by Governor Kohler immediately after the storm in St. Croix, Polk, Barron, Rush and Sawyer counties to investigate and report relief measures. Capt. Warren D. Leaty was aided in his personal investigation by the adjutant general himself, Captain Leary and Lieut. Kolar, Co. D, 128th Infantry, Rice Lake, and two non-commissioned officers are on active duty. They will remain so until further orders.

In a telegraphic report to the governor, General Immo advised that a public meeting is being held at Barron Wednesday to discuss plans for rehabilitation in time for spring planting.

"Local people through their Red Cross chapters have taken prompt steps to relieve the immediate situation," Governor Kohler said.

Colonel Nicholas Schantz, General Immo's aide, visited the part of Lafayette, Green, Grant and Dane counties, where another storm struck Saturday night in compiling a detailed report to the governor.

CLEAN-UP DAY

Barron — (AP) — Wednesday is clean-up day in the tornado area. All places of business here have been closed and the proprietors and their employees have gone to stricken farms to aid the farmers in the work of rehabilitation.

CHAPTER I

Mildred adjusted her hat before the mirror in one of the sun-bathing machines and tucked in a stray brown curl.

A man slipped furtively through one of the turnstiles, glanced rapidly up and down the subway platform and brought his eyes to rest on the fox neckpiece around Mildred's shoulders.

She was very proud of that scarf. It had been given to her by a woman guest in the hotel where she was employed just before the woman sailed for Siam with her husband.

Mildred did not notice the stealthy approach of the sun-bathing individual who stopped and leaned against a nearby pillar, half hidden from her sight.

Her attention was focused on a young man down by the seawall. They bumped together on the stairs. There had been an echo of a quick "Sorry," a fleeting, polite gesture with a soft, gray hat and he was gone, hurrying on in a vain attempt to make the train.

Mildred hurried also, but they were both too late. She was annoyed. Just those few seconds lost in the collision would cost her several minutes.

Well, Mr. Grant Hurry, whose fault it was, had missed the train, too, she saw with satisfaction. Served him right to go tackling traffic as though he were on a football field.

It further annoyed her to note that he didn't seem to mind. Apparently he was absorbed in the paper he held in his hands.

"I'll bet he hadn't a darn thing to hurry for," Mildred thought resentfully, casting another cross glance at him. "No profile. Sort of a Wall Street-young broker look about his clothes, too. Surely there wasn't any need for him to worry about getting home before dinner was spoiled. And this was chop night at her house, Mildred reflected ruefully. Well, maybe her mother hadn't looked all of them. "Any thing but warmed-up chops."

She looked at her wrist watch. Nearly an hour late. Well, at least, she had escaped the terrible crush of the subway rush hour. She went over and took a seat on a bench, snuggling her chin down in the luxurious platinum fox. It always gave her a pleasant sensation to do that.

Her mother had looked grave when first she saw the gift. "I don't want my girls getting used to finery they can't afford," she said. Mildred had sighed over that. Her life was spent in getting used to things she couldn't afford. All day she saw fashionably and expensively gowned women coming and going in the Judson Hotel. It was rather a hard contact for a very pretty girl whose salary was needed at home.

A train pulled in and she stepped quickly aboard, taking a seat by an open window with her back to it. She noticed that the nice-looking young man was not in her car.

Neither was he in any other. Back on the platform he lifted his eyes from the sports page and swore feebly. "Stood right here like a dumb ox and let it go past me," he lamented in disgust. As the departing train pulled farther away the words he chose to express his emotions grew stronger.

Then, far up on the platform, a man thrust an arm through the open window at Mildred's back, gave a swift kick and withdrew it before anyone could stop him. With it came Mildred's scarf. She felt the sharp tug at her throat when the clasp was drawn against it before she knew that anything was happening.

Fortunately the clasp parted. Her hand flew up instinctively and she clutched frantically at the brush of the fur as it disappeared from her sight. Simultaneously she screamed but for a few seconds she was too bewildered to move. Then she jumped to her feet and ran through the cars to find a guard. He could do nothing for her. It was not a new story to him. He advised Mildred to leave the train at the next station and return.

Her helplessness brought a sense of complete loss to Mildred. The only good fur she'd ever owned! The thief would be man's back away before she could get back under her coat. There was a chance that someone had seen him snatch the fur, she told herself encouragingly as she hurried over to take a down town train.

She found a crowd gathered at the scene of the theft and when she had pushed her way into the presence of the officer at the center of it she was too breathless to speak for a moment.

He had expected the owner to return; had, in fact, delayed in starting for the police station with the man whose arm he held in an iron grip. But he couldn't wait any longer. The crowd would not disperse so long as there was something to be seen and the officer knew there was imminent danger of someone being pushed off the platform onto the tracks below.

"That's my fur," Mildred managed at last to gasp and reached out a hand to take it.

"Sorry, miss," the officer said. "You'll have to come along with us to the station and claim your property."

"Oh, Mildred wailed, "I'm late now."

"You'll come too," the officer said, turning to a young man beside him. Mildred had not, until then, looked at anyone except the officer and his prisoner. She recognized the young man now.

"Did you catch him?" she asked breathlessly.

"Of course," he answered to both of them.

"But how did you do it?" she pressed as he helped her to make a way through the crowd to the street. "Weren't you on the train?"

"Couldn't have been if I caught him, could I? Don't you believe me?"

"Oh, yes, of course," The crowd thrust them closer together. Mildred looked up at him with awe. "I'm awfully glad. But how did you do it?"

The young man threw out his hand. "Well, old D. A. M., no, it's not a word, just initials—says I might amount to something if I could take my mind off the sports page. You see, I missed the train because I started reading about hockey. Then I saw this yegg grab a fur—"

"And you stopped him?" Mildred broke in, her voice filled with admiration. "Of course you didn't know whose fur it was," she added with a tiny trace of wistfulness. It would have been nice to have inspired heroism, she thought.

"Didn't I though?" the young man lied beautifully. He was asking himself how the deuce he'd missed seeing in the first place what a peach of a girl he'd crashed into.

They had reached the street now, in the wake of the officer with the fur thief skulking in his grasp.

"Let's take a taxi," the young man with Mildred said suddenly to the guardian of the law. "I'll pay for it."

"Right," the officer responded and held up a commanding hand.

Mildred was glad to escape from the curious throng that had followed them. But she did not like the way the fur snatcher, who sat beside the officer, facing them, flicked his evil eyes over her figure. She turned her glance from his ugly face and sat over a little closer to the man next her.

"Why there's a dreadful scratch on your cheek," she exclaimed and her eyes flew back accusingly to the other. His mouth twisted in evidence of some inward satisfaction.

"He put up a stiff fight," the hero immediately proclaimed and started to apply a handkerchief to his wound.

"Here," Mildred cried and thrust one of her own upon him. She had noticed that his was not irreparably clean. He grinned at her as he took the hemstitched square she offered him.

"Whatever do you do with your handkerchiefs?" she asked scoldingly.

"Polish automobiles?"

"Yes, you see I believe in bigger and better polishes. Seriously, I sell automobiles and I hate the finger-marks people leave all over them."

"But can't you find something else to remove them?"

"Absent-minded," that's me. Old D. A. M. says—"

"Who is this D. A. M.?"

"The big boss. D. A. Mettelle of Mettelle's Agency for the fastest eight in the country."

"Why, I know who he is," Mildred told him excitedly. "Do you work for the Mettelle Agency?"

"Well, he has employed my services for several months, but there are moments—"

"Your place is near mine," Mildred said on his unended sentence.

"Is that so?" the young man was instantly interested. The officer grinned slightly under cover of their oblivion to himself and his prisoner.

"My name's Armitage, Stephen Armitage," the young man went on. "Of course I can find a name for you but for practical purposes perhaps you'd better tell me what you're generally called."

"Miss Lawrence. I'm the public stenographer at the Judson."

"Now isn't that a coincidence, Miss Lawrence? I was planning to take some work over to the Judson in the morning. Some stenographic work."

Mildred flashed him a glance of suspicion. "Surely Mr. Mettelle's stenographers can do your work," she observed coldly. He might as well get her right, she thought. Her position at the hotel was a good one, the best she'd ever had and she took it seriously.

"Some private matters," the young man returned loftily and before Mildred could frame an answer to the taxicab had stopped at the police station.

The routine they had to go through was shortly over with and Mildred once more was in possession of her scarf.

"That's a nice bit of fur," Stephen remarked when they were back on the street. "Don't you think I'd better see you home so that it won't get stolen again?"

"I'll take better care of it after this," Mildred assured him. "I don't know how to thank you for what you've done already."

"I'm glad I know you get safely home with it. I won't feel I've done anything," he protested. "And since we're going to see a lot of each other in the future don't you think that we might—"

"I must telephone mother," Mildred interrupted. "She'll be worrying."

"Here's a cigar store right on the corner. What's the number, please?"

Mildred had to smile at his ingenuousness. "I'd better do it," she demurred. "A strange voice might frighten them. Mother's always nervous when I'm late."

Stephen beamed. "So they are not used to strange voices calling?" he said happily.

"Not when I'm away," Mildred replied teasingly.

"Your favorite pastime is bursting bubbles, isn't it?" Stephen reproached her. "And you're grateful too. You have a home and a mother and I have only a hotel room. Besides, I need someone to look after this scratch. I'm sure your mother could fix it up."

He touched his cheek gingerly and pretended to wince. Mildred was concerned.

"Well," she hesitated, "we live very simply. Mother isn't often prepared for unexpected company. In fact, I don't think there will be much dinner now but if you care to take potluck—"

"Potluck? Why, potluck is what's at the end of the rainbow. And to a fellow whose home is out in Indiana and who hasn't had a home-cooked meal in six months your kind invitation sounds like the trumpet call to feast."

"I don't know how mother will receive you," Mildred warned him seriously, "when she learns that you're a perfect stranger to me."

"Ah, thanks for the adjective. It makes it easier to be called a stranger."

"Fresh, aren't you?" Mildred took him to task. Suddenly he changed. "No really I'm not, Miss Lawrence and I think it's great of you to let me go home with you even if I have sort of forced the invitation. But I don't see any sense in wasting a lot of time getting acquainted when you know who I am and I know who you are."

"But I don't really know who you are."

"Sure you do. You know I couldn't be with the Mettelle Agency if—well, don't you see, that's a recommendation, though honesty compels me to admit old D. A. M. doesn't always agree with my point of view."

Mildred nodded. "Well, you seem determined to meet mother. Come along and let's phone. But when I tell her I'm bringing a man home to dinner that I didn't know an hour ago she's going to have an old-fashioned moment, I'm afraid."

"I'm all for the modern kick, myself," Stephen declared. "Lots of pep and knows how to play an old game a new way."

Mildred looked at him. He saw the question in her eyes. "Getting what you want," he explained. "That's what people always have been doing. Only the girls are franker about it now. The way I feel, if a girl liked me I'd O. K. her letting me know it. We fellows are finding out that we haven't got all the original ideas by any means. We appreciate a lead or two to save time."

Mildred felt uneasy. She hoped he wouldn't talk like that in her mother's hearing. Of course she understood him. She heard a lot of such modern opinions. But they shocked her mother.

"Well, don't let Connie know you're looking for leads," she laughed, "or she'll have you napping the date before dinner."

They were back at the subway now. "We'll change for an express at Seventy-second street," she said. "I told mother we'd hurry."

When they left the train Mildred stopped at a delicatessen store and made a few purchases which Stephen wanted to pay for and was not allowed.

"You'll have to carry them up four flights of stairs to pay for your dinner," she told him.

"Four flights of stairs! Why, my dear girl, I take a walk to the moon and back every time I'm feeling happy."

The stairs were somewhat narrow and not very well lighted but that did not seem to put a damper on the young man's spirits. Mildred was glad of the dimness; it hid the dirty handprints on the walls and the unclean corners of the stairs.

Her mother welcomed them with poorly concealed agitation. She wondered what any young man would think of her daughter in these circumstances. In her day—

"Did you cook the chops?" Mildred whispered in her ear when she kissed her mother.

"There's only one," the mother whispered back; "but it's got kidney. I wouldn't let Connie have it. She had it last time."

"This is the young man who saved my fur for me, mother. Mr. Armitage."

"Please to meet you Mr. Armitage," she gave him a welcoming hand that felt rough to his touch but had a sincerity in its pressure that left a pleasant feeling in Stephen's memory. He knew the difference between genuine friendliness and the glad hand.

Well, usually he made a good impression. Someone once had told him it was his curly blond hair that awoke a maternal instinct in the women he met. Why men liked him no one had as yet told him.

"The conquering hero comes," a voice mocked from the living room doorway. "I've a notion to break my date."

"For goodness sake, Connie," the mother snapped. "Mr. Armitage will think you don't know how to behave."

"You must excuse me a moment," Mildred said and left her mother to cope with the incorrigible Connie.

A few minutes to get into a simple lilac chiffon dress, a few magic touches before the mirror to hair and complexion and Mildred was ready to entertain her guest.

She found Connie lighting a cigarette for Stephen, perched on the arm of his chair. Mildred knew it wasn't a studied pose. Connie was far beyond posing in her strides toward modernism. She let herself follow instincts and not on impulses. If she wanted to sit on the arm of a chair—anyone's chair—she sat on it. She wasn't bent on mischief, however, and when Mildred appeared she went out to the kitchen. In reality to help her mother. In reality to rave about Stephen.

"If only Mildred had a little more snap," she remarked. "She might be able to hold him. But I doubt it. Pity."

"Connie. Aren't you ashamed the way you talk?" her mother reproved her. "Mildred is simply being nice to a young man who was of service to her. But I'd rather she hadn't got acquainted with him so easily. He might think she isn't very particular—"

Connie laughed. "And how you know men, mom. As though any man would criticize a girl for picking him up. Some other fellow, now—that's different."

"Go set the table and don't talk so much. You'll learn a lot some day, miss," her mother answered irritably.

"Well," Connie said to herself a moment later, glancing into the living room, "maybe there are more ways than one of getting your man."

Mildred was applying an antiseptic lotion to the scratch on Stephen's cheek and he seemed to like her ministrations.

Just then the telephone rang. Connie went to answer it. Most of the calls that came in were for her.

"Hey, Mildred, it's for you," she yelled from the hall and put down the receiver with an impatient bang. "Wouldn't it be just like Pamela Judson to call up when Mildred had a new boy friend?"

Pamela's unexpected calls and sudden demands upon Mildred's time were bitterly resented by Connie, who considered that Pamela took advantage of her sister.

Mildred had a foreboding of what was to come.

"But I've only just got home," Stephen heard her say. "I was delayed and I can't possibly go out again tonight. Can't you get somebody else?"

Evidently the person at the other end of the wire had plenty to say. It must have been convincing, too, for after a while Mildred agreed, wearily, to do whatever it was that Pamela needed her for.

She came back to Stephen in a little flush of temper. He thought it most becoming to her.

"I've got to go down to the hotel this evening," she said apologetically.

Stephen rose. "May I go with you?" he asked.

"Oh, not before dinner," she assured him. "There's plenty of time."

"Dinner's ready now," her mother called from the dining room.

"Why don't you tell that pain in the neck to go to blazes—"

"Connie!"

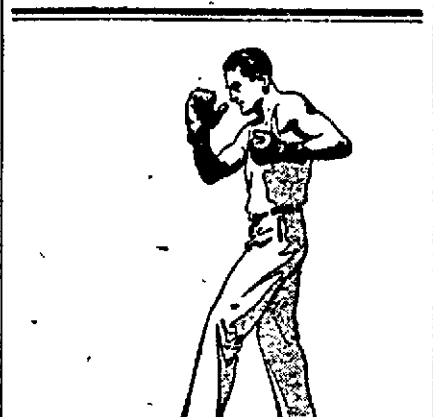

Connie subsided.

"Pamela wants me to be at the door in the reception room tonight," Mildred explained to her mother. "The junior dance. They don't want anyone to crash it."

"But what can you do?" her mother questioned.

"I know by sight all those who are invited," Mildred said.

"In, but not of, our best society," Connie sniffed. "Well, it's too bad

INSTEAD of exercise

Millions of busy men and women are learning the secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime!

CASCARETS give your bowels as much real exercise as they get from an hour with the boxing gloves! Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They weaken your bowels.

Every time you use Cascarets your bowels become stronger. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this! That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million boxes a year, and people everywhere depend on them to relieve headaches, biliousness, dizziness, bloating, indigestion, constipation, etc.

she couldn't have let you know before the last minute."

"Oh, Pamela never thinks of anything before the last minute," Mildred said good-naturedly. She didn't want Stephen thinking they were catting. But if he just knew Pamela—"Are you talking about Pamela Judson?" he asked and Mildred felt as though he had read her mind. "Say, I know her. Sold her a car last fall. She saw a model in the show window that she liked. Walked right in and signed her check and then asked how much."

"Yes, she's just rolling in father's money," Connie remarked sarcastically.

"I'll say she's rolling in a lot of it when she takes that eight out," Stephen said. "A four-speed baby, too."

"Wha...at?" Mrs. Lawrence gasped.

"Er...I mean the car, Mrs. Lawrence. It takes some driving to handle four speeds."

Mildred got up to carry out their plates and bring in the dessert. Pamela wanted her early—there was always a lot Pamela wanted other people to do for her. Not that serving Pamela was any part of Mildred's duties, but she had begun that way to be obliging. Now she had a feeling that if she refused, her place at the hotel would not be secure. So long as Pamela did not carry her demands too far Mildred was willing to accede to them.

But tonight she was slightly resentful. Stephen Armitage was good company.

Her resentment prevented her from hurrying, but after they'd finished their coffee she said they must go.

At the hotel, when she was saying good night to Stephen in the lobby, she saw his gaze go past her face and his smile suddenly broaden in delighted surprise.

Mildred turned. Coming toward them, with a wave of jeweled arms and flying silver feet was a honey-haired girl in a red tulle evening gown.

Music in Industry

In the small town—on the farm—in the depth of the wilderness—the glorious music of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under the personal directorship of Dr. Frederick Stock is made available each Sunday evening through the radio broadcast sponsored by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

One of the chief gratifications the company experiences in bringing this fine musical organization within radio reach of the people of the Middle West is in the disclosure of one of the reasons why Chicago has become a great cultural center of the world.

On Sunday, illness, distance, age are no obstacles to music lovers. Propped up in bed—sitting in a comfortable chair—without effort—anyone anywhere may "listen in" on programs of beautiful music composed by the immortal musicians of all the ages—played by the finest artists of our time—broadcast by a company proud of the privilege of thus serving its customers and friends.

Today the radio is a popular medium of entertainment. In sending you these concerts by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is offering the best in music as it offers the best in petroleum products.

No one is surprised today that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) should help to support one of the finest musical organizations known, broadcasting its concerts for everyone with a radio to hear.

The best is expected of this Company! Years of experience have proved to the people of the Middle West that the products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are the best it is possible to produce from petroleum. The name of this Company is a guarantee of quality, whether it be considered in connection with music or oil.

Polarine and Iso-Vis motor oils are as truly masterpieces in their sphere of usefulness as are a Beethoven Symphony or a Mozart Concerto in the world of music. Each represents the highest attainment in its field. Their purposes can not be compared, but they are akin because they belong to the Brotherhood of the Best.

The best music—the best petroleum products—are carried to all parts of the Middle West by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in the spirit of practical service that through the years has earned for it success.

Tune in next Sunday, from 6 to 7 P. M., for Chicago Symphony Orchestra, also on Thursday evenings, 9:30 to 10:00, for the Iso-Vis Entertainers, over WGN, Chicago; WTMJ, Milwaukee; WOC, Des Moines; WFO, Omaha; WDAF, Kansas City; KSD, St. Louis; KSTP, St. Paul; WIBC, Superior.

EXPECT CONGRESS WILL DEBATE ON RESERVE SYSTEM

Believe Federal Bank Will Be Brought Up at Special Session

BY CLINTON COFFIN
Washington—(AP)—Expert readers of "writing on the wall" agree on the prediction that the forthcoming farm relief session of congress will hear considerable debate on the powers of the federal reserve system and the effect of nation wide stock speculation on the country's credit structure.

In simplest terms, the federal reserve system is designed to guarantee that any solvent, member bank, on any business day, can put out in currency its entire deposits. It is further aimed to provide that currency so paid out will be as good as gold.

So sure is the guarantee the federal reserve institution extends that its ability to make good has scarcely been tested since 1914.

The national banks and some state institutions have been brought into the association which owns the 12 banks located in monetary centers across the country. These central banks deal only with member banks and with the government. They issue and withdraw currency.

CHECK OUTPUT
Each local banker, lending money, tries by custom to confine his output of currency to the total of the deposits of the bank he conducts. If he has reason to overdraw, he turns some of his security over to the reserve bank in his district. In so doing he pays an interest rate termed the "rediscount rate."

The ideal of the federal reserve system is to keep the rediscount rate low, but just a little above the rates for money in the markets, so that no bank will borrow from it without making a slight sacrifice.

Experience has convinced many bankers and lawmakers that call loans—money lent on stock exchange transactions—cannot be admitted to this currency emitting privilege. Security markets must get their cash where they can and when millions of new speculators spring up, as today, call money rates can go to 20 per cent and beyond.

Gradually, as speculators insist on funds, the high interest rates catch all the loose money available. Banks turn more and more to the federal reserve. Currency volume threatens to grow above the standards considered safe and the reserve system must increase its rediscount rate.

INTERNATIONAL SIDE
Then comes the international side. With the help of the federal reserve board the currencies of England and

ATTORNEY WORKING ON LIGHT ORDINANCE

Measure Would Establish Proportion City Would Pay for New Systems

A. C. Bossier, city attorney, is preparing an ordinance for the common council's consideration stipulating the proportionate cost to be borne by the city and adjoining property holders for ornamental lights erected hereafter in the city.

If the ordinance is finally adopted by the council, the city will pay half the cost in residential districts and the adjoining property holders will pay the other half. In business districts the city will pay one-third of the cost, while the balance will be borne by the adjoining business men.

The recommendation with these provisions was prepared several weeks ago at a joint meeting of the council street lighting committee and a special chamber of commerce committee.

The ornamental lights on College-ave were paid for entirely by businessmen. The two committees responsible for the proposal held that the city as a whole as well as the adjoining property holders benefitted by an ornamental lighting system, and believed that both should participate in sharing the expense of any future installations.

21 AUTOS STOLEN IN STATE DURING MONTH

Twenty-one automobiles, one from Appleton, were reported stolen during March to the secretary of state, according to a report received by Sheriff Fred W. Giese. Other valley cities which reported stolen cars were: Green Bay, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac. Five machines were stolen in Racine and two in Milwaukee. Thirty-two stolen automobiles were recovered during the month as compared to the 21 which were stolen.

NEW RADIO TUBE IS PERFECTED BY POWER

Dr. A. D. Power, who until February was professor of physics at Lawrence college, recently succeeded in locating and remedying the difficulty in the large scale production of an oxide-coated filament radio tube.

The tube he perfected had just been in the experimental stage and only 20 per cent of the tubes manufactured had a sufficient filament emission.

Dr. Power suggested modification and experimented with them. The test made after the changes suggested showed that out of 45 tubes tested, 45 were good and in larger production the same results were seen.

Dr. Power is employed in the laboratories of the Westinghouse Lamp company at Bloomfield, N. J.

FEW BOYS ENROLLING FOR MILITARY CAMPS

Outagamiac-enrollments for Citizen Military Training camps are coming in too slowly, according to Raymond P. Dohr, chairman of the committee in charge of country enments. Some counties have nearly filled their quotas, while in this county four boys have enrolled. The county quota is 25, according to Mr. Dohr.

Three Kaukauna youths and one from Little Chute have enrolled to enter camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill. "It's the early bird that gets the worm and unless local boys sign up soon, they will be unable to get to Sheridan or McCoy this summer," Mr. Dohr stated.

High School Track Squad In Daily Workouts

ACTIVITY LIMITED BECAUSE FIELDS ARE NOT YET DRY

Coach Shields Planning Interclass Meet for Saturday, April 27

TRACK at Appleton high school started in earnest this week but Joseph Shields almost needs an airplane and compass to find where his proteges are working. Tuesday evening the high jumpers out on the school grounds along with the discus tossers while over in another corner a couple of the boys were tossing the shot. Down in the long corridors in the high school basement the hurdlers were dashing up and down while all Shields knew about the mile distance and distance men was they were out running around the town square. Until conditions on the various athletic fields improve, the boys will have to remain on their own lot which isn't even big enough to turn around on.

Looking over the outlay at this early date Shields appears to have a fairly good squad if a lot of things come his way. For instance, he has a big fellow who can toss the shot and discus with the best of them and should easily take a couple of firsts, in Popp, fullback on the grid squad last year. But so far Popp hasn't showed up and as a result ten points in almost any meet are going by the boards.

There is plenty of material for the relay team again this year and with a couple of vets back for last year's championship aggregation indication are the team will repeat. Men from last year's squad are Nohr, Kuntz and Wolfgram and will be helped by Marston and Batley.

Likely candidates in other events are Steinbacher and De Young in the mile; Batley in the half mile; Nohr the 40; Wolfgram and Kuntz the 220 and 100 yard dashes; Marston in the low hurdles; Neller in the pole vault; Popp in the shot put and discus; Schaefer in discus and javelin; Elias and Tams in the high hurdles and Kramhold in the broad jump, and high jump.

The first meet for the high school track and field men will be held the last Saturday this month when the three classes will compete against each other.

The track schedule for this season is as follows:

- May 4—Conference relay carnival at Manitowish.
- May 11—Dual meet with Manitowish.
- May 18—Lawrence meet at Appleton.
- May 25—State meet at Madison.
- June 1—Conference meet at Appleton.

NATIONAL AMATEUR BOUNTS AT BOSTON

Thirteen Cities in Country Represented by 125 Contestants

Boston—(P)—Boxers from 13 cities Wednesday remained in the semi-final round of the national amateur boxing championships, which started here Monday night with 125 contestants striving for eight boxing titles.

When the second series of three round contests ended early this morning, the New York and Boston teams were tied for first honors. Both had five boxers qualified for four of the eight classes. The team of battlers from Grand Rapids, Mich., made the next best showing, placing four of its men in as many of Wednesday night's semi-final bouts.

Detroit, Philadelphia and San Francisco each had three qualifiers and seven other cities had either one or two representatives who were able to live through two nights of rugged going.

During the last three days they crossed the Cumberland and Allegheny mountains. Tuesday they traveled 63 miles from Cumberland, Md., to Uniontown, climbing to a height of 2,500 feet, while surmounting the peaks of the Alleghenies. Wednesday's jaunt is 33 miles.

HOW BADGERS NEW FIELD HOUSE WILL LOOK

The dream of a new home for Wisconsin's indoor athletic teams will become a reality before the first of the year, for within six weeks time construction of the new field house will be under way. Final approval has been given the plans as prepared by State Architect Peabody and his staff, and bids will be called for within the near future.

It is through the untiring efforts of George Little, director of athletics, that countless obstacles have been overcome, and a definite building program has been agreed upon by all parties concerned. Following ex-Gov. Zimmerman's veto of the bill appropriating funds for this project, Little chose the present line of attack; namely, the loaning of $355,000 to finance the scheme.

Director Little expects to dedicate the field house at one of the early basketball games next winter, and is confident that the structure will be completed by the opening date of the conference cage schedule. The building will face Regent and Monroe Sts., backing up to the open end of Camp Randall stadium. A tunnel will connect the field house with training quarters under the east stands of the stadium.

The seating capacity will total 12,000, in the two permanent balconies and the knock-down bleachers. The basketball floor will be sufficiently large to permit division into two regulation playing courts for practice. Track facilities will include two 80 yard straight-aways, a high jump pit, an eighth mile running track, two broad jump pits, a shot put area and a vaulting pit.

The dirt surface surrounding the basketball floor will easily accommodate all track equipment, as well as provide for indoor work in football and baseball. A new section of concrete bleachers will be erected at the south end of the stadium gridiron, attached to the rear wall of the field house.

The Ryder Cup team, led by Walter Hagen, forms the nucleus of the present invasion, of course, but there are others, both masculine and feminine, who will see what they can do in the way of upholding national prestige on foreign links.

Hagen, the Captain, is the present British open champion, Johnny Farrell holds the national open crown; Leo Diegel is both the Professional Golfers' Association title-holder and the Canadian open King. Horton Smith, was the sensation of the winter season; the others, Al Watrous, Johnny Golden, Gene Sarazen, Joe Turnesa, Al Espinosa, and Ed Dudley all have been playing at top form during recent months.

Along with the Ryder cup team will sail Bill Mehlhorn, Tommy Armour, former national open title-holder, and George Von Elm, who once held the national amateur crown.

A match to decide the winner of fifth place in the National league of the Elk bowling league will be rolled Wednesday night on the club alleys. The competing teams are Philadelphia and Boston, the winner being awarded fifth place in the loop, the loser, sixth.

Four Good Teams And Four Fair Ones In N. L.

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright 1929
NEW YORK—A sharp line of cleavage runs through the National league, dividing it into two groups on the basis of what has been demonstrated in spring practice. The teams in the groups are lined up as the first and second divisions finished in 1928.

In the first group are the New York Yankees, Pittsburgh and St. Louis clubs and in the second the Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston clubs.

It is not probable that more than five games will separate the winner of the 1929 race from the club that is second and it may be that not more than five games will separate the first three clubs from each other. The fourth club is apt to be farther back because it will the fight of a team that near the close is not very hopeful of winning the pennant but does hope to get into the split up of the world series money.

If the Cincinnati Reds held in hand a better punch and were quite sure they could hold their place when the opposition becomes stronger, there would be reason for naming them for the first group. They have not shown it yet, but much can happen between now and the end of September.

The individual characteristic brought out by each club to date is batting and a punch by Chicago; speed by New York, with a certain amount of good pitching; fine pitching for Pittsburgh with a certain amount of speed and good general all around play; and a persistent determination by St. Louis to cling to

Stribling And His Pa Taking Jaunt To Europe

BY JOHN J. ROMANO
Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—Young Stribling is packing up preparatory to taking a trip across the seas. According to Pa Stribling this will be more in the nature of a pleasure jaunt for W. L. and a cessation from ring activities which will be a tonic for the hard-working Georgian. A suspicion lingers with the writer that Pa and W. L. are stealing a march on the heavy-weight field and by the time the outdoor season is getting ready to stage another blue ribbon extravaganza W. L. will be in a position to step in with as much claim as Jack Sharkey has to the title of "defending champion."

The success of the Georgian battler in the ring can be attributed to the matching genius of Pa Stribling whose knowledge of showmanship, physical condition and a "that goes to put a fighter where his ability is recognized by the general public."

Now Pa and W. L. are not making the trip overseas just for the pleasure there is in it. There are such highlights as Phil Scott, British champion, Max Schmeling, Ludwig Haymann, the German title-holder and a few others notably Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, residing there. What is more likely than Pa Stribling entertaining an offer to meet or all of this crowd while he is over there? Nothing at all. Pa Stribling is not the one to turn down a good offer and especially so if Phil Scott or Max Schmeling is W. L.'s opponent.

There is no doubt in the writer's mind that just now Young Stribling can whip any European heavyweight and this goes for Max Schmeling. Max is a good hitter but so is Stribling. Then again W. L. has it all over Max for experience and this would be the deciding factor in a meeting between them. Phil Scott is a good boxer. Stribling would tear in time after time and nullify the Briton's boxing so that he would succumb to a right-hander on the chin.

Fans can expect to hear some good news from Europe after Pa and W. L. got started talking to promoters over there.

Chicago—(P)—Wisconsin Maple Tumblers carried away the largest slice of the $107,700 prize melon offered by the American Bowling Congress for its 1929 tournament.

The tournament, which attracted 13,000 bowlers and which lasted 29 days, closed Tuesday night.

A. Enke, veteran Milwaukeean, was the heaviest individual prize winner, collecting $300 for rolling 723 to capture the singles title and $175 for winning second place in the all-events. Other Badger bowlers carried away hundreds of dollars by grabbing five of the leading 10 places in the five-man competition and placing high up in the other events.

Illinois was second to Wisconsin in collective winnings.

Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, who topped the all events class with 1,974 pins won $180, while the Hub Receptions of Joliet, Ill., split $1,000 for winning the five-man event with a 3,963 score.

First place in the doubles and a $500 prize fell to W. Klecz and P. Butler of Chicago, who hung up a 1,353 count.

The 1929 tournament was the largest and most successful in its 23 years of play. Entries were composed of 2,523 five-man teams, 4,917 doubles teams, and 8,853 in the singles. Many of these bowled in all events but it was estimated 13,000 different pin smashers competed.

White scores generally were highest this year in history and last year's winning totals were surpassed in every event, except the doubles, none of the all-time marks was shattered.

The 1930 tournament will be at Cleveland.

CANZONERI WINS BY SHADE OVER EDDIE ANDERSON

Milwaukee Crowd Largest Since Days of Ritchie Mitchell

MILWAUKEE—(P)—Eddie Anderson, rejuvenated veteran 130 pounder from Chicago, forced Tony Canzoneri, former world's featherweight champion, to extend himself to the limit to win a close ten round bout here Tuesday night.

Canzoneri, the new-er verdict, but he was a poor second in the cheering which went to the one-time Wyoming cowboy. Canzoneri, the knockout conqueror of Joey Sangor and Armando Santiago in recent Chicago engagements, failed to slow up or even upset Anderson. The battle was fought in the Milwaukee auditorium before a crowd of 9,000, the largest turnout since the days of Ritchie Mitchell.

Anderson, showing contempt for the New Yorker's punching ability, effectively blocked a high percentage of Canzoneri's leads, traded punch for punch and several times made the former titholder miss like an amateur. He fought a cagey battle, but could not overcome the fiery aggressiveness Canzoneri possessed from the start. At the finish they were standing toe to toe in mid-ring, trading punches to the head, but with Canzoneri failing to land a finishing blow.

The newspaper experts credited Canzoneri with winning five of the rounds, with four going to Anderson and one even. Canzoneri's most damaging wallop was a short right cross delivered in the fourth round, a punch that sent Anderson spinning across the ring. But he came back viciously and in the eighth opened up a cut under Canzoneri's right eye.

They fought at 131 pounds, with Anderson just making the weight and Canzoneri scaling 129½.

In the semi-wind-up Jack "Chick" Elkhart of Pueblo, Colo., knocked out Joe Thomas of Oelwein, Iowa, in the third round of a scheduled six round contest. They weighed 155 pounds. Mitz Minkel, Milwaukee lightweight, stopped Tony Lunge of Rockford, Ill., in three rounds.

Suggest That Ball Clubs Here "Pool" Their Talent

Want Best Talent in Valley League; Seconds in Inter-county

BY G. R. MCINTYRE

NEXT week at this time the major league baseball teams will be on their way in the annual pennant chase. And in about 25 days his honor the ump will crawl out on a valley baseball park and address the multitudes present at "Ladies and Gentlemen."

Indications now are there again will be two teams in the field representing Appleton, one in the valley league and a second one, commonly called the Athletics will be in the Inter-county league.

In both groups there will be a couple of good ball players, a couple of fair ones and a couple that aren't so good. But why, asks this writer, should there be two mediocre teams when there could be one good one to play in the valley league which admittedly is higher class ball than the Inter-county loop where a good "second" team might hold forth.

The Inter-county loop could serve as a "farm" for the valley league and make positive two good clubs in each league. And the arrangement would also prove valuable in that the boys in the big league would have to play ball to keep their positions while those in the other would want to play their best to get a chance in faster company.

Two clubs in the field offer another suggestion. If they are being run on friendly terms, the schedules might be arranged so that only one would be at home each Sunday and they might both use Interlake park.

The present Brandt park has fallen into the dumps because it is not kept up while the Interlake park was fixed up a year or so ago. It's also a costly proposition to use Brandt park and the Interlake grounds are almost municipal grounds.

The Fourth ward admittedly is the best baseball section of the city and games there every Sunday would draw good crowds. With one of the teams playing at home each Sunday, fans would be furnished with good home talent baseball each week and the sport would again come into its own.

Under present arrangements, the American legion is sponsoring a Junior baseball league each year. Here a large number of youngsters get their first training. Wouldn't it be a pretty good thing if the Juniors graduated into the Inter-county league and the county leaguers into the valley loop?

The thought in this story has been broached in baseball circles several times this winter. As far as the immediate vicinity is concerned it has been suggested that the Athletics "feed" Appleton, Little Chute "feed" the Kimberly-Little Chute group and Waukegan "feed" Kaukauna. And if that all worked out, what would be nicer?

Atlanta, Ga.—(P)—Doug McWeeny finally has turned in the kind of pitching Wilbert Robinson has come to expect from his regulars. McWeeny was at his best against Atlanta Tuesday. Pitching seven innings he baffled the Crackers all the way.

Augusta, Ga.—(P)—Walter Johnson and his Senators from Washington are making the New York Giants look bad. The Senators gave the Giants another thrashing Tuesday, 7 to 3, battering Fred Fitzsimmons for six runs in the second inning.

Indianapolis—(P)—The Cincinnati Reds were in Indianapolis Wednesday, trying to get out of the ram which for two days balked their efforts to play the Louisville Colonels a pair of exhibition matches. The schedule called for a game with the Indians here Wednesday and another Thursday before the Reds return to Cincinnati Thursday night.

New Orleans, La.—(P)—The Cleveland Indians break camp Thursday and head northward. The last game with the New Orleans Pelicans, their camp practice mates throughout the season, was cancelled Tuesday because of wet grounds. Birmingham and the Cincinnati Reds at their home field are on the Indian home bound schedule.

Shreveport, La.—(P)—The Tigers were to make their final attempt to win a baseball game from the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday before enroute for Detroit. Donie Bush's National leaguers nanded Detroit.

Norfolk, Va.—(P)—It begins to look as if the veteran Hank Gowdy, who was a leading major league catcher when he was with the Braves 15 years ago, might leave his coaching duties more than once for the Braves this year. Tuesday Gowdy was behind the platter for the full nine innings, nursed south-paw Ed Brandt along to pitch almost shut-out ball, made two hefty singles and galvanized his despondent mates into playing real ball.

who was one of the greatest all-around first basemen in 1927. At this stage, it seems first base is the major weakness of the big league clubs. "Bob Quinn isn't satisfied with Todd at Boston and Shires is a question at Chicago. At Washington, Joe Judge is in his declining years and is not expected to play over 100 games. Pittsburgh might have used him instead of the cumbersome Sheely.

"The Braves are going along with Sisler, still able to hit when the pitchers throw within range of the dimmed eyes, but awkward and inefficient at the bag. Even the Cubs could have found a place for Johnny as Grimm, still a fair hitter and fielder, is very slow.

"Yet, all these clubs permitted Neun to slip into the minors without batting an eye.

WANTS ANOTHER CHANCE

"I have always felt that Johnny was too good a man to step out of the majors unless something was wrong with him. I put up my idea to Neun and his happy smile quickly disarmed any suspicion that he was unwell.

"I'm not only in good health," he replied, "but I actually feel better than I have in three or four years. Probably my appendix trouble was working on me for some time before I realized what the trouble was. Two weeks after the operation last summer I felt a new man.

"I am ten pounds heavier than I ever have been and I am stronger than at any time in my career. I've always liked to play ball but the urge is greater than ever this spring. Perhaps it is the feeling that I am still a major leaguer which provides the determination to prove this season that I have a right to go back where the big money is.

"It is up to me to play my way back to the majors."

Leave for England Wednesday

Walter Hagen, captain, and his Ryder Cup team sail April 10 for England. Farrell and Diegel are slated to play No. 1 and No. 2.

BY GLENN ALLAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jason sailed on the quest of the golden fleece without the benefit of outside cabins and running water, but he faced few hardships more severe than those confronting the American professionals who take off April 10 in search of the golden Ryder Cup.

Jason was a hero and a Charybdis or a Scylla were nothing very much to him. The young men and the younger men accompanying Capt. Walter Hagen abroad are stalwart citizens and capable golfers, but they have no magic charms other than those of skill and daring.

The matches to be played at Leeds are important, as they represent the rubber. British pros won the first session in 1926 and the Americans won the second a year later. By that time the matches had become official; Samuel Ryder, famous British sportsman, had put up a golden vase; teams were limited to "native-born" and a two-year interval established.

Both matches saw the losing sides swamped. The Americans trailed 1 1/2 to 13 1/2 at Wentworth and the British lost the cup by 2 1/2 to 9 1/2. Eight singles matches and four Scotch foursome matches are played, each match won counting one point. Halved matches count a half point for both players.

BLOCKED ROADS SHOWN IN GAS TAX RECEIPTS

Madison—(AP)—The reduced automobile traffic in Wisconsin during January and February while snow blocked the state's highways is reflected in the sharp decline in receipts from the state gasoline tax collected by Solomon Levitan, state treasurer.

January tax receipts were $313,185.05, as compared to $506,745.96 in December, while the February receipts dropped to $299,475.42. The high mark in gas tax receipts for the first nine months of this fiscal year was set in August, when they amounted to $585,932.13.

The balance of all funds in the state treasury on April 1 amounted to $16,534,196.92, according to Mr. Levitan's monthly report. The balance of March 1 was $12,523,518.42. Receipts during the month of March from all sources was $16,509,556.94, and disbursements were $12,789,505.00.

TREATED LIKE AN ORPHAN

MANY of the American Association baseball writers are puzzled because the Detroit Tigers let Johnny Neun slip away from their possession during the winter months.

One of the puzzled ones is Dick Neade, columnist on the Toledo News-Bee and former president of the Toledo Hens.

Neade, after watching Neun in spring training, writes this: "When the Detroit management requested waivers on Neun in the winter, it was the idea of President Navin and Manager Buckey Harris that Johnny's lingering appendix illness removed the will to play major league baseball. The Tigers were planning on assigning Harry Heilmann to first base, had closed with Toronto for Dale Alexander, and had drafted Dud Branon from Louisville.

"As the situation is now presented, Branon is going back to Louisville soon. Heilmann is slow, too fat and too sociable for the job and Alexander, while a corking hitter, is a dud as a fielder. The Detroit people might have suspected the present outlook in December, yet they did not hesitate to send Neun away.

Nobody WANTED HIM

"It seems that a number of big league teams might have used Neun.

FARM GROUPS WANT MORE RESTRICTIONS IN TARIFF ON WHEAT

Canada Can Produce Crop Cheaper, Organizations Point Out

BY J. C. ROYLE Copyright 1929

New York—Canada within a brief space will be shipping the wheat now stored in her elevators from the 1928 crop to Europe by way of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river. By July, she will be shipping wheat from the far west by way of Fort Churchill, on Hudson's bay. The majority of this wheat will be carried cheaper than the American grower can have his produce sent to the identical markets.

Unless crop damage works havoc with the Canadian grain, the rush to grow wheat north of the international line will not be checked in 1929. This drive of Canada to produce more wheat comes on top of a world situation which grain men say has seldom been more bearish. That is something for congressmen and senators who will shortly gather at Washington to mull over, as well as farmers and millers. Canada is increasing her acreage materially. Much of this increase is in virgin territory which has not been depleted and from which the highest possible yield, double that of many districts in the United States may be expected. Moreover, this territory needs no fertilizer.

Wheat is bulging from the elevators pretty much the world over. The United States seems likely to have a carryover from the 1928 season of approximately 200,000,000 bushels. This despite export sales of 150,000,000 from the 1928 crop and a greater demand for and consumption of wheat than the world hitherto has known. About 100,000,000 would be a normal carryover.

PRICES NOT FAVORABLE

Prices at the moment are not favorable. They are on a world wheat basis which gives the farmer barely $1 bushel for his wheat. Wheat should have sold at 25 cents a bushel higher than it has done since July 1, 1928, to give the farmer a really adequate return according to the experts. There was a time when the United States furnished wheat to most of the civilized world. Now, instead of American wheat dominating world markets, world markets for the American surplus dominate the price paid for wheat in the United States. Australia, Canada, Russia and south America all are increasing production and are on a competitive basis with the American yield.

It is an impossibility for America to compete with those countries when it comes to cost of man power. The belief therefore is growing that the future of the wheat industry lies in the supplanting of man power by machinery, in the cutting of production, transportation and marketing costs and in cooperative buying of supplies and machinery by individual farmers.

Farm organizations want further tariff restrictions on wheat. Just what effect this would have if obtained is not certain for importations are small, although some millers use a certain amount of Canadian grain to mix with the American wheat. The real competition comes in foreign markets. News from the European wheat belt indicates that the winter wheat crop came through in fine shape despite one of the most severe winters ever known.

It is still too early to become alarmed over the situation of the wheat growers however. The weather is the determining factor. A dozen things may happen to change the situation before the end of the crop year but the accurate weighing of the varying factors in the farm relief scales of congress is going to keep many a legislator awake nights.

COMMODITY NOTES

Packing House Products Chicago—Packers describe the meat business during the past week as unsatisfactory except for smoked meats. Demand was light for beef and there were called unsatisfactory while the same term was used to describe the veal business. Pork was easy in tone.

Sugar

New Orleans—The Cuban sugar export pool is now functioning. All the American companies operating in Cuba are contributing and to date about $50,000 tons have been pledged.

Canned Goods

San Francisco—Canning of asparagus is now in full swing in the Delta country. It is expected that this year's pack will reach approximately 2,400,000 cases. Old stocks are well cleared up.

Moscow—(AP)—The Soviet government has forbidden the opening of new liquor shops in industrial cities. The sale of vodka is also prohibited on holidays, pay days and in public places such as theaters, clubs and hotels.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous cathartics do without any of the bad effects. Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath. Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists, Adv.

FARM WEATHER SPOTTED IN MONTANA THUS FAR

Helena—Montana entered the 1929 farm season with weather conditions and moisture reserves spotted out not unfavorable for an excellent crop. Livestock has wintered well; winter wheat everywhere is in excellent condition and surveys indicate increased acreage to spring wheat, flax and corn. Potatoes seem slated for a five per cent decrease in acreage.

MANY LARGE BANKS NOW ARE ENTERING TRUST BUSINESS

Movement Is Latest Tendency in New York Banking Field

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE Copyright 1929

Wall Street, New York—Financial Review and Outlook—The moves in the New York banking field are coming so rapidly that it is difficult to keep up with them to run down the rumors that are current from day to day of new consolidations. The significant tendency that has developed recently is not so much the merger of banks with each other, which has been common in the banking world for years, but the reaching out by national banks into the field of trust business and in that covered by the distribution of securities as well as getting an entrance into the foreign banking field.

The latest step in this direction is that taken by the Chase National Bank, announcing today its purchase of the American Express Company, which does the largest domestic and foreign business in travelers' credits of any organization in this country. It is estimated that its foreign checks alone amount to $200,000,000 annually or about twice as much as the total letter of credit business done by its competitors and also nearly double the checks issued by its nearest competitor.

The foreign exchange operations of the American Express company have always been a big factor in the market for sterling and for francs. One great value to the Chase bank of its acquisition is in obtaining representation in every important financial center throughout the world.

The balancing of strictly banking business with that of administering estates and other trusts is represented in the recent union of the National City Bank with the Farmers Loan and Trust company. The merger of the Bank of America with Blair & Company brought together an institution with large deposits and a private banking house with both a national and international reputation for the successful distribution of securities.

NOT STOPPING YET

The centralization policy, however, is not stopping with the larger banking corporations. Two significant developments appeared in Tuesday's news. One was the consolidation of the old investment house of E. H. Rollins and Sons with Howe Snow & Company, a younger firm occupying an active place in the same field. About a year ago Wall Street was surprised to hear of the coming together of the two prominent bond houses of R. L. Day & Company and Remick, Hodges & Company, which had been conspicuous for the distribution of high grade bonds in the New York and Boston territories. It is expected other houses will strengthen themselves against the changes that have occurred in security distribution and that additional mergers will develop before the end of the year.

Still another phase of the same situation and one that reveals the scope of the investment trust program is today's report that control of Case, Pomeroy & Co., a firm that has made a reputation in the past ten

MEDICAL RANKS ARE SPLIT OVER CONDUCT OF WELFARE CLINICS

Societies Claim Competition of Social Enterprises Is Unfair

BY OWEN L. SCOTT Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

Chicago—Open warfare is breaking out within the ranks of the medical profession over social welfare enterprises—often sponsored by philanthropic citizens. Trouble which has been brewing for the past two years, finally has broken out here, where the medical center of the nation is in the process of development. It is expected soon to bubble to the surface whenever endowed clinics spring up.

OBJECT TO COMPETITION

The medical profession—or part of it—is aroused over what it describes as "unfair competition" of these endowed services. On the other hand, the endowments are given on the ground that medical and surgical attention is too high priced for the man of average salary. It is contended that service in a hospital, including medical and laboratory service, could be given for approximately $5 a day instead of the $20 which it now costs the average Chicagoan.

The attitude of the doctors is expressed by Dr. James H. Hutton, secretary of the Chicago Medical Society in its official bulletin. "Many members are bitter in their denunciation of the unfair competition offered by the Billings hospital and the University of Chicago," he says. "The Public Health Institute is always a thorn in the doctor's flesh. Some practices of the Infant Welfare society are irritating to some members. Mr. Hurley's idea for a clinic is another irritant. The Rosenwald foundation proposes to rescue the 'man of moderate means' from the private practitioner.

"Yesterday it was the poor man who needed the assistance of the philanthropist; today it is the man of moderate means; tomorrow even the rich man may need this assistance. The private practitioner will have become entirely incompetent except when he shines in the reflected light of some foundation."

The Northwest branch of the Chicago Medical society, in a resolution dealing with the tendency toward endowed clinics declared that it "recognizes in these moves a tendency toward the socialization of medicine, the pauperizing of the public and the lowering of medical standards."

It asked the society to combat "these evil measures."

The situation in Chicago is described as symptomatic of that in other centers. The medical profession throughout the country is pictured as aroused over the progress

PINN BILL COVERING COMMISSIONS KILLED

Madison—(AP)—The Assembly has killed the Pinn bill allowing fire and police commission in cities operating under the city manager plan of government. The bill for extra compensation for county judges holding court outside their own counties was advanced to engrossment. Assemblyman Gilbertson's bill on improvement of highways with county funds was killed along with the Weller bill which would have forced trucks and busses using rural highways to put on pneumatic tires before the first of the year. The Saugen bill for county referendum on issuance of bonds, on the initiative of voters, acting by petition, was passed and Assemblyman E. G. Smith's bill providing for tuberculosis examinations in regional or branch laboratories approved by the state board of health, and making the diagnosis of these laboratories as effective in enforcing the anti-tuberculosis laws as the board.

HAD DESPAIRED OF RELIEF: THEN SHE HEARD OF KONJOLA

Nervousness and Indigestion Are Banished Through Use of This Advanced Medicine Like tidings of great joy the praise of this new medicine—Konjola—is spreading with rapidity throughout this city and vicinity; as word of its astounding success in the relief of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, as well as in cases of neuritis and rheumatism, is passed from one to another. Scores who have found new health through Konjola, are loud in their praises, and the Konjola Man, who is explaining the merits and properties of this wonder medicine at Schintz Bros. Drug Store, 114 West College Ave., this city, has no end of remarkable testimonials as to the efficacy of this celebrated remedy. Among the happy ones eager to tell what Konjola accomplished in her case, is Miss Anna Jackson, 232 Iowa avenue, Joliet, Ill., who made the following statement: "I had almost given up hope of ever being relieved of my health troubles when Konjola was brought to my attention," said Miss Jackson. "I have taken a treatment and now my health is all that I ever hoped it to be. "My nerves were so upset that I was really almost a wreck. I could stand nothing, even the playing of children around me was enough to drive me frantic. Noises of any kind were almost more than I could bear and it seemed to me that I was steadily getting worse. To add to my troubles I was constipated and was addicted to taking strong laxatives all the time. After a short time their effect wore off and then I would be as bad as before taking. I also had indigestion very bad and everything that I ate would sour on my stomach and I was always belching up gasses and hot, sour liquids. It was constant misery for me. "I heard about Konjola from someone who had not faith in medicines and I knew that if she would endorse any remedy it certainly must have merit. Of course, I wouldn't let an opportunity to regain my health slip away from me and so I decided to give Konjola a trial. How happy I am that I did because it has proved to be the stepping stone to new and glorious health. It was almost unbelievable the way in which Konjola worked on my inner-system—soothing, restoring, invigorating all the organs. My nerves became quiet, noises, children—nothing caused me any distress. I was so happy at this relief that I hardly knew what to do. So you can realize my feeling when the constipation disappeared and I was able to throw all laxatives in the waste basket. Then I noticed, surprising as it sounds it is the absolute truth, that the indigestion had begun to clear up. To test this out I tried foods that always harmed me and they digested perfectly. Now the gas does not form, belching and all other symptoms are ended. What a happy person I am and Konjola receives the credit."

ASSEMBLY BOARD HOPES TO PROVE AIMEE WAS LIAR

Assemblyman Indicates He Hopes to Pick Flaws in Evangelist's Story

BY BEN G. KLINE
Copyright, 1929, by the Consolidated
Press Association

Sacramento, Calif.—The task of proving that Aimee Temple McPherson's famous kidnapping story was untrue was voluntarily undertaken by the brave board of managers of the State Assembly shortly after the opening of the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy before the California Senate here Monday morning.

Assemblyman Walter Little in the opening statement for the prosecution made it clear that though the white haired Los Angeles jurist is the defendant in the impeachment proceedings, the comedy head of Angelus Temple will be on trial as to the truth or falsity of her explanation of her disappearance two years ago from a southern California beach and spectacular reappearance in a desert town near the Mexican border.

Outlining the case the prosecution will present, Little said that two Arizona deputy sheriffs went in search of Sister McPherson's purported kidnappers and found one of them had been, all during her disappearance, in the middle of Mexico; another, was dead and the third was in the penitentiary. These officers will be placed on the witness stand to prove, Little said, that they reported to Judge Hardy and that therefore Judge Hardy knew that Aimee's story was untrue.

The assembly prosecutors will attempt through these and other witnesses Little said, in plain words, to show that Judge Hardy from that time on worked to substantiate the evangelist's false story and directed investigations made 'not to find out but to conceal facts.'

SUBPOENA 40 WITNESSES

The assembly managers had subpoenaed close to 40 witnesses to help them prove that Judge Hardy practiced law while a Superior Court judge and accepted a $2,500 check from Angelus Temple in payment for legal services. Among those subpoenaed is Mrs. McPherson herself. Though little outlined the testimony he expects from publicity men, reporters, grand jury members, detectives and deputy sheriffs, he did not state what he expected the white haired evangelist to contribute to the prosecution's case.

It may be that the assemblyman will not call the evangelist at all but will prefer to let her be called by Judge Hardy's counsel and have the right to cross examine her.

The defense has not revealed what witnesses it will call. Little stated that the managers expect the deposition of Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, to substantiate every charge made against the impeached jurist.

It appeared during the first morning of the proceedings that a trial before a jury of forty senate members would be extremely long and wordy with senators contributing liberally both to delays and words, but things eventually got under way and Lieutenant Governor H. L. Carnahan kept them moving. The defenses Judge Hardy offered when his friendly activities in behalf of Angelus Temple and its pastor were under investigation by the national and state bar associations were offered in evidence. A court order was issued to enable the prosecutors to bring as a witness Asa Keyes former district attorney of Los Angeles who is now in jail convicted of receiving bribes, and two witnesses were put on the stand to substantiate the prosecution's contention that the assistance Judge Hardy gave Angelus Temple and its pastor was of a legal nature.

WILL HOLD SCHOOL FOR FIREMEN IN MADISON

Madison — (AP) — Firemen, both volunteer and professional, from nearly a score of Wisconsin cities are expected at the short course in firemanship to be given by the University of Wisconsin, June 25 to 28.

The move came as a result of a resolution endorsing the idea of a technical short course for firemen and has since been supported by the Wisconsin Paid Firemen's association.

According to announcements of the course issued this week, the course will deal with subjects of fire prevention, fire control and fire extinguishment, oil-burner hazards, pensions and compensation for firemen, village and farm fire protection, electrical fire hazards, care and maintenance of equipments.

then led the Queen of Hearts and finessed. East won and returned a Heart which South won and then tried the Diamond finesse by leading low toward Dummy's King-Jack. East won again and led a third Heart; South, put in the lead with a Club, then tried and lost his third finesse by leading a low Spade toward Dummy's Ace-Queen. This held Declarer to a total of one Spade, two Hearts, two Diamonds and three Clubs — one less than game. He complained bitterly because all three of his finesses lost, which was indeed hard luck.

Could Declarer have won his game?

THE CORRECT PLAY

Before playing to trick 1 from his Closed Hand, Declarer could be sure that East had no more Clubs. West must have opened a four-card suit and, as North and South each have four, East's total Club holding must have been the Club played on the first trick. The Declarer can count eight sure tricks; by letting East's Club Ten win the first trick and forcing him to lead up to Dummy's tenace in either Spades, Hearts or Diamonds an extra trick can be secured in Dummy which otherwise could be won only by a successful finesse. Although Declarer had three possible finesses at his disposal, there was a chance that all three might fail; but by ducking the first trick, it became unnecessary to depend upon any of them as this maneuver insured one led up to Dummy instead of three leads toward Dummy.

CHILDREN'S BILL BEFORE COMMITTEE

Hearing on Reis Code Measure Is Held Wednesday by Group

Madison — (AP) — Along with the Grobbschmidt bill for repeal of the state dry law, important measures before committees Wednesday include the Reis children's code bill.

A senate resolution, by Sen. Ben Gettleman, obviating the code bill for another session by providing for an interim legislative committee investigation of the problem, is the code measure to be heard by the senate committee on education and public welfare.

Miss Marie Kohler, sister of the governor, Father M. F. McEvoy, social service head of the Milwaukee Catholic diocese, the Rev. A. S. Braceland, head of the Stoughton Lutheran Home and Mrs. Ben Hooper, Oshkosh, by letter, all oppose the resolution.

Mrs. Hooper's letter, already received, urges against the expenditure of money investigating the laws relating to the dependent, neglected and delinquent children, after the state Conference of Social work has spent nearly two years on the project without cost to the state.

The Children's Code, pending in the Assembly, is the third effort during the past 10 years to incorporate into Wisconsin laws, modern and humane provisions for handling the problem of the child who is in need of special care.

History of child welfare legislation shows that the first attempt was made in 1918, when Governor Phillip appointed a Children's Code commis-

BILL WOULD CREATE HARBOR COMMISSION

Madison — (AP) — Wisconsin harbors would be governed by a state harbor commission under a bill just presented in the Assembly by Ed Hillier, Racine.

The bill would call upon the governor to name a three-person commission, which would have $100,000 to use in its work. The members, however, would not be paid a salary, receiving only expenses.

The conservation committee presented a bill making the starting of county forests less complex. Instead of their being invariably established by popular vote, the county board is empowered by this bill to vote funds for their establishment, referring the matter to the voters only if it sees fit. The matter is put over to the next county board meeting if a referendum is not held, and in the interim, the proposal must be published three times.

A resolution asking for investigation of unsettled claims of the 1928 Wisconsin Good Will tour to the south (the first one) was presented in the lower house.

Sen. J. H. Carroll has threatened the same senate procedure. He was chairman of the legislative committee that superintended the tour and C. A. Duggan, assistant from Rice Lake was secretary-treasurer.

Contests included camping, hiking, swimming, canoeing life-saving and various other familiar forms of Scout craft.

Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car they ever tested.

Essex the Challenger sweeps aside the barriers of price class. It challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in. # PASTOR OUTLINES FIVE REASONS FOR MARITAL TROUBLES

Claims People Are Becoming Too Independent of Each Other

Individualism and personal independence as it is being taught in the schools of today, and the conception of marriage which is being portrayed on the screen are two of the big factors causing divorces, separations and other marital troubles, the Rev. J. W. Krueger of Berlin told 250 people in Mount Olive church yesterday evening. The topic of the address was Companionate Marriage.

"Childless marriages, the speed of transportation and the delinquency of fathers and mothers are other great factors in breaking up homes," the speaker said. "It is a matter of a mere hour for a wife to travel from 40 to 60 miles from her home and husband to enjoy an evening with a sheik away from 'monotony' as some call it."

"Many fathers could use 10 nights of the week for clubs and other social activities without giving one evening to his family. The situation is becoming more and more complex from day to day and the future generation will face problems even more complex."

Mr. Krueger with Judge Ben Lindsay on the factors which are bringing about the deplorable situation, but I do not think his remedy is sound.

"Companionate marriage will not solve the problem, but will make matters more complex. Accepting the Bible teachings, it could be compared to polygamy."

FEDERALS AGAIN CONTROL JUAREZ

Rebels Evacuate City and Cavalry Meets No Opposition in Entry

Juarez, Chihuahua —(AP)—Federal troops Wednesday regained control of Juarez, arriving a few hours after the Mexican rebels had evacuated the city.

Col. Jesus Triama with 350 cavalrymen, met no opposition. Colonel Triama said he had come from Villa Ahumada, about half way to Chihuahua City.

Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan with about 7,000 loyal soldiers is expected within the next few days.

Rebel troops who invested this city after a sanguinary street battle a month ago, abandoned their prize Tuesday night in the face of advancing federal forces and steamed away westward, apparently intending to combine forces with the revolutionary army in Sonora.

A train of 26 cars, commanded by General Marcelo Caraveo and heavily laden with men, horses and equipment, left Juarez at 9:30 Tuesday night for an unannounced destination. The city practically was deserted of troops, only a handful of rebels remaining behind to serve as a rear guard.

At Coenen, 28, of El Paso, airplane mechanic, was forced to accompany the evacuating army. It was reported the American was turned aboard the rebel troop train and held under guard until it left.

Only three other rebel fliers accompanied the train, the remainder of General Caraveo's pilots having deserted and crossed the Rio Grande before the troop movement started.

General Caraveo indicated he would remain in western Chihuahua for a few days, using Casas Grandes as a base for guerrilla operations. It was believed he hoped to join forces with the Rebel General Nicolas Fernandez who was reported on his way to Casas Grandes from Chihuahua city overland with 400 cavalrymen, destroying branches of the Mexican Northwestern railroad enroute. The combined rebel forces then were expected to proceed into Sonora for a further concentration of the revolutionary army.

PROBE STABBING NORTH OF ANTIGO

Badger Near Death in Hospital—No Signs of Scuffle in Home

Antigo —(AP)—His wife and six men were on their way from the little town of Lily, northeast of here, for questioning, while Peter Middleton, 40, lay near death in a hospital here as the result of a stab wound received early Wednesday morning.

Authorities held forth two conflicting theories concerning the stabbing. Some asserted that it was the result of a brawl, while sheriff's deputies planned to further question Mrs. Middleton.

Ed Fend and Grant Dillray, who were passing the Middleton home about 1:30 Wednesday morning, heard screams. As they approached the place, Mrs. Middleton came to the door calling for help they said.

On entering, they found the man in his bed, bleeding from a stab wound behind his left ear. The two men said that they saw no signs of a scuffle. They were unable to obtain any coherent story from Mrs. Middleton.

Her husband was rushed to a hospital here, but attendants Wednesday morning held forth little hope, saying that the wound was a severe one. Sheriff Thomas Ford of Langlade co is investigating the affair.

INDIANS DISPUTE IS MERELY FAMILY ROW, U. S. AGENT AVERS

Green Bay —(AP)—The dispute between Alice Oshkosh and her uncle, Reginald Oshkosh, over the chieftainship of the Winnebago Indian tribe, Wednesday was characterized as a mere family quarrel by W. R. Beyer, Indian agent at Keshena.

Upon the death of her father, Ernest, Alice assumed the title of princess and claimed the chieftainship of the tribe. Reginald claims the young girl's mother has misled the public to further her daughter's interests. He also declared that the girl could not rule the tribe because she was not a full-blooded Indian.

Meanwhile Alice is going ahead with her plans. In a recent speech, she advocated Indian ownership of land instead of government trusteeship. She intends to study law in order to help her people, she said.

PROBE STABBING NORTH OF ANTIGO

Badger Near Death in Hospital—No Signs of Scuffle in Home

Antigo —(AP)—His wife and six men were on their way from the little town of Lily, northeast of here, for questioning, while Peter Middleton, 40, lay near death in a hospital here as the result of a stab wound received early Wednesday morning.

Authorities held forth two conflicting theories concerning the stabbing. Some asserted that it was the result of a brawl, while sheriff's deputies planned to further question Mrs. Middleton.

Ed Fend and Grant Dillray, who were passing the Middleton home about 1:30 Wednesday morning, heard screams. As they approached the place, Mrs. Middleton came to the door calling for help they said.

On entering, they found the man in his bed, bleeding from a stab wound behind his left ear. The two men said that they saw no signs of a scuffle. They were unable to obtain any coherent story from Mrs. Middleton.

Her husband was rushed to a hospital here, but attendants Wednesday morning held forth little hope, saying that the wound was a severe one. Sheriff Thomas Ford of Langlade co is investigating the affair.

UNEVEN MOVEMENT ON STOCK MARKET

General Tendency in Wednesday's Trading Is Toward Higher Levels

New York —(AP)—Price movements lacked uniformity at the opening of Wednesday's stock market but the main trend appeared to be upward. Initial gains of a point or so were recorded by American Can, Anaconda Copper, Best and Co. and U. S. Steel Common. Indian Petroleum advanced fractionally to a new high record. Kolster Radio dropped 2 points, and Nevada Copper 1.

A. M. Byers quickly ran up 7½ points, Baldwin Locomotive 5, Montgomery Ward 4½, Houston Oil 4 and General Electric, American Can, Woolworth and Radio advanced 3 or more points before the end of the first half hour.

Oils also showed a firmer undertone. Indian Refining crossed 51 for the first time and Texas company advanced a point.

Foreign exchange opened easier, with sterling cables quoted a shade lower at $4.85 5-16.

The closing time was irregular. Total sales approximated $3,000,000 shares.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT DEBATED IN MICHIGAN

LaSalle, Mich. —(AP)—With a definite finance plan evidently on its way toward enactment, the legislature Wednesday turned its attention to crime measures and inquisitorial activities.

The senate judiciary committee was to meet for a final show down on capital punishment, with indications that a bill providing electrocution for major criminals would emerge.

The controversial Cuthbertson liquor bill again was a center of attention as house and senate conference committees got together to seek a compromise. House conferees were prepared to insist upon elimination of mandatory penalties for first liquor violators.

The lower branch approved the Turner bill, appropriating two million dollars annually for the aid of poorer school districts. After returning to the senate for concurrence in minor amendments it will go to the governor for approval.
